Toronto Postmen
Will Work FridayDecisive Vote
Ends Walkout

TORONTO (CP)—Striking postal workers in the Toronto area voted 1,857 to 347 today to return to work in a decision union leaders hoped would turn the tide and end the week-long unauthorized walkout.

At a mass meeting the postal clerks and letter carriers decided to report to work for the early-morning shift at 5 a.m. Friday.

But they were told they could, if they wished, go back on the job tonight and begin to move the mountain of mail that has accumulated here since last Thursday.

The vote was announced at 1:43 p.m. after national leaders of the three postal organizations urged the men to reverse their Wednesday decision and return to work.

The 2,200 postal clerks and 1,200 letter carriers have been on strike for a week to back demands for salary increases. The return to work of Toronto postmen is considered the key to ending the strike which has tied up mail deliveries in three provinces.

The strike committee told the cheering workers they should return to work for 14 days, then look at a report by federal mediator Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville, Ont. The committee said if the report was unfavorable another strike could be called.

Judge Anderson has said all postal employees should receive "further substantial" pay increases.

Pensioners
Get Cheques,
Says Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Steps have been taken to set up cheque-distribution centres for old age pensioners, Prime Minister Pearson said today.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh announced today emergency distribution centres for old-age pension cheques are being set up in all areas hit by walkouts of postal workers.

The Montreal area alone will have nine distribution centres. Old-age pensioners who are bedridden are being asked to notify the health department's local offices "through a relative or friend" if they need their cheques brought to them. Delivery would be arranged by the department "as fast as this can be done."

(Joseph Belland, president of the postal workers' brotherhood, at the same time said in a statement that he had been in touch with welfare officials and had informed them striking postal workers would not interfere with old-age pensioners wishing to go through picket lines to pick up their cheques.)

Mr. Pearson said the cabinet session was devoted mainly to working on the government's spending program for the next fiscal year so that spending estimates can be prepared.

GIN CHEAPER THAN WATER

NEW YORK (AP)—Tiffany's, Fifth Avenue jewellers, plans to put two fountains in its window displays. But precious water in this city facing a shortage will not be used.

A distiller will donate seven cases of gin to be constantly recirculated in the fountains.

This year, New York ordered fines for any person or business which wastes water.

Mail Service 'Normal'
As Backlog Vanishes

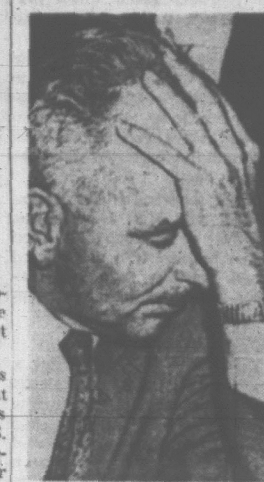

Mail deliveries were near normal in Victoria today as postal workers caught up on the last backlog of work.

By 5 a.m. this morning all first-class mail had been sorted and cleared.

Only material still awaiting delivery is a pile of third-class mail—mostly handouts and advertising material—on which there is an embargo, and a smattering of second-class mail, mostly monthly publications. The embargo will not be lifted until all other mail is cleared across Canada.

While the machinery hummed in Victoria the wheels were back in motion in Vancouver. Members agreed Wednesday night to tote the mail for 14 days until federal commissioner Judge J. C. Anderson gives the government his recommendation.

But it was made clear that if the letter carriers don't like his recommendation they will strike again.

EXPRESSIVE POSE is struck by Charles Maguire of the Hamilton, Ont., section of the Postal Employees Association at a meeting which saw Montreal workers vote to stay on strike. Maguire had told them to "think very hard" about such action but got only light applause. (CP Wirephoto.)

Teen-Ager
Shot Dead;
2 Charged

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP)—A white teen-ager was killed by a shot fired from a passing car early today as about 250 Negroes started an all-night civil rights vigil at the Sumter County courthouse.

Police arrested two Negroes and charged them with the shooting. They were identified as Eddie Will Lamar and Charlie Lee Hopkins, both of Americus. One hundred state troopers were ordered into the city to preserve peace.

Witnesses said the victim, Andy Whitley, 19, was shot shortly after midnight as he stood with a group of white youths at a filling station about three blocks from the courthouse.

The witnesses said two or three shots were fired from a car containing three Negroes. Some, however, thought there were only two Negroes in the car.

Police said the car containing the Negroes was wrecked a short distance from the filling station.

Civil rights demonstrators made three marches to the courthouse Wednesday. The first two were completed without incident although white hecklers greeted them as they began the vigil.

About 50 whites gathered near the courthouse but police formed a line to separate them from the Negroes, who carried bedrolls and raincoats.

Four Swedish Quints Die;
Mother Used Fertility Drug

FALUN, Sweden (Reuters)—A Swedish woman treated with hormones to make her fertile gave birth to quintuplets today but four of them later died.

The babies, who died, were three boys and a girl. The surviving girl was said to be in critical condition.

The birth came only two days after the same drugs helped produce quintuplets to a New Zealand mother. The New Zealand quintuplets have survived. The quintuplets' 30-year-old mother was in good condition.

After their birth this morning the quintuplets were put into an oxygen tent. Their weights were between two and four pounds.

The birth came two days after the birth of quintuplets in Auckland, N.Z., and press reports in both countries said both women had been treated with a drug to counteract a deficiency in the pituitary gland which prevents women becoming pregnant.

Doctors here said it was believed to be the first time quintuplets had been born alive in Sweden.

Four girls and a boy were born Tuesday to Mrs. Samuel Lawson of Auckland, and all are reported in good condition.

A statement issued by the Falun hospital said that if the newest quintuplets had lived through the night, "there was an excellent chance that they would have all survived."

BOMBERS BUSY

Airborne Division
Arrives

SAIGON (AP)—Paratroopers of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division arrived in South Viet Nam today.

As 3,700 men of the 101st First Brigade began landing at Cam Ranh Bay, 180 miles northeast of Saigon, a U.S. spokesman said B-52 jet bombers of the U.S. Strategic Air Command dumped 500 tons of bombs on suspected Viet Cong positions 35 miles southeast of Saigon.

After the B-52 raid—the sixth in South Viet Nam by the Okinawa-based bombers—several thousand paratroopers of the 173rd Airborne Brigade began combing the hilly area. By late today one Viet Cong had been killed, another captured, and there were no U.S. casualties, the spokesman reported.

The paratroopers who landed at Cam Ranh Bay were greeted by the man who commanded their division when it dropped into Normandy to spearhead the Second World War invasion of France, Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor.

It was one of Taylor's last official acts in Viet Nam. He leaves Saigon Friday, to be replaced by Henry Cabot Lodge. Among the arrivals was Taylor's son Thomas, an intelligence officer with the brigade.

The landing came less than 24 hours after President Johnson announced U.S. forces in Viet Nam would be increased from 75,000 to 125,000 men. But a U.S. spokesman said transfer of the 101st Brigade was part of a six-battalion increase in U.S. forces that had been planned some weeks ago.

The paratroopers came from Oakland, Calif., aboard the troop transport Gen. Le Roy L. Eltinge. Their brigade commander, Col. James Timothy of New Orleans, La., said his men would deploy initially around Cam Ranh Bay to provide security for 2,500 U.S. Army engineers who are building a port and an airstrip on one of South Viet Nam's finest natural harbors.

The witnesses said two or three shots were fired from a car containing three Negroes. Some, however, thought there were only two Negroes in the car.

Police said the car containing the Negroes was wrecked a short distance from the filling station.

BOLSTER ARMY DIVISION

The paratroopers will reinforce 1,080 men of the U.S. Army's 1st Division who arrived July 12.

On the battlefield, an estimated 192 Viet Cong guerrillas were reported killed in a big government operation launched Wednesday in the Mekong Delta 100 miles southwest of Saigon, in Chuong Thien province.

Government losses were described as "light to moderate." U.S. and Vietnamese war planes made 75 strikes in support of the ground operation Wednesday, the spokesman said.

To the north, 26 Viet Cong were killed by U.S. and Vietnamese marines in a combined operation in the Duc An area about 60 miles south of Da Nang, U.S. spokesman said.

OFFICIALS
IT IS HOT

Today was the hottest July 29 on record. Shortly before noon, the mercury tipped 78 degrees, beating the previous high of 77.7 set in 1947.

And there was a good chance of temperatures creeping higher this afternoon as offshore winds held off.

Victoria weatherman William Mackie promised the same treatment Friday with blue skies and sunshine.

Temperatures may be a fraction cooler but there is every chance of another picnic weekend.

So far this month Victoria has had 318 hours sunshine and 15 inch of rain.

Overnight temperatures should be between 49 and 57.

There is a certain alertness and agility required as a safety consideration, and a certain resiliency is also required to cope with the long working hours that may sometimes be encountered."

Miss Power said this was "ridiculous" since there are

However, the CAFAA claims it has never been shown anything stipulating a retirement age of 32, but the Air Canada spokesman said a letter to that effect was sent to the association in 1960.

PHOTOGRAPH NUMBER 11 of Mars was released today by U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Picture was taken from 7,800 miles and covered an area 170 by 150 miles.

MAY HAVE 10,000 CRATERS, PHOTOS SHOW

Mars Like the Moon

WASHINGTON (AP)—Latest pictures of the planet Mars disclosed today that the planet may be pockmarked by up to 10,000 craters, and that it appears to be more like the moon than the earth in its surface features.

This was revealed by space agency scientists in a report to the White House. The report covered findings on 18 previously unpublished photographs taken by Mariner 4 on its epochal voyage to the planet.

The scientist who made the main report said that the findings "will profoundly affect scientific views about the origin of the solar systems," and specifically may shed new light on the history of the earth.

Dr. Robert Leighton of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif., said the latest released pictures of the red planet reveal 70 craters ranging in diameter from three to 75 miles. He said that if the rest of the planet is like the area photographed by Mariner during a period of 25 minutes, there must be "more than 10,000 craters (on Mars) compared to a mere handful on the earth."

Leighton said evidence from the photographs "neither demonstrates nor precludes the possibility of the existence of life" on the planet.

But the fact that the photos indicate Mars never had any oceans or significant quantities of water makes the prospect of finding life on Mars "less promising," he said.

The scientist took the view that if life does exist on Mars in some primitive form—perhaps bacterial or plant life—Mars "may be the best, perhaps the only, place in the solar system for preserving primitive conditions."

The report was presented at a White House ceremony in which Johnson remarked that he was "a little bit relieved" the photographs didn't show more signs of life out there.

He said he felt this way because he belonged to the generation which writer-actor-producer Orson Welles "scared out of its wits" with a realistic radio broadcast during the 1930s of an imaginary invasion of earth by Martians.

Leighton said one of the photographs revealing craters is "one of the most remarkable scientific photographs of this century."

Referring to another photograph covering an area in Mars' South Polar regions, he said some of the craters "appear to be rimmed with frost."

NO CLOUDS SHOWN

Leighton said Mariner's photographs of the planet disclose "no earthlike features such as mountain chains, great valleys or continental masses" and there is no evidence of clouds.

He said from study of the photographs so far these inferences about Mars can be drawn:

● In terms of evolutionary history Mars is "more moonlike than earthlike."

● The age of the planet may be somewhere between two and five billion years.

● The surface of the planet is "remarkably preserved"—that is its very thin atmosphere has not changed the surface of the planet since the surface was born.

● The planet never had water sufficient to create oceans or other large bodies, because it had such water at any time in its history, there would have been "severe erosion" of the planet's surface which is not evident from Mariner's photographs.

● The interior of the planet has been "long inactive" as compared to the earth, which Leighton said is "internally dynamic."

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson indicated today that election considerations—either a general election or by-elections to fill Commons vacancies—have been shelved at least until the postal dispute is settled.

He smilingly admitted at a press conference that he's been reading a lot of press reports which say he's considering a fall election, that he's the only one who can decide on one and that he hasn't made up his mind.

What's This! Girls Too Old at 32?

MONTREAL (CP)—Is a girl too old at 32?

Yes, says Air Canada. Definitely not, say 800 stewardesses, members of the Canadian Airlines Flight Attendants' Association.

The issue of a retirement age for stewardesses has been taken to Allan MacEachen, federal labor minister, an association spokesman said Wednesday.

The problem was raised recently because within the next few weeks three girls will reach their 32nd birthdays and will have to retire as stewardesses. They have been offered similar paying jobs with Air Canada and two have accepted. The third hasn't decided what to do.

Miss Imelda Power, spokeswoman for the CAFAA, says the company policy on stewardess retirement is bad, and added the association believes the age limit should be extended to 50. She said legislation is being

TWO FLYING OBJECTS SEEN OVER SPOKANE

SPOKANE (AP) — Two unidentified flying objects were sighted over Spokane Wednesday night, police authorities here reported.

The objects, seen in both the southeast and southwest parts of the city, were said to be bluish-white with a slight reddish tinge and oblong in shape.

A sheriff's officer who sighted the objects said he thought they were weather balloons, but the U.S. weather bureau here said it had no balloons in the air and thought it highly unlikely any might have drifted in from other areas.

LBJ PLAN FOR U.S. ARMED FORCES

Slow-Paced Buildup For Viet Nam Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. defence department probably will ask Congress to boost the regular military forces by 300,000 men or more in a gradual buildup through heavier draft calls and recruitment of volunteers.

Sources disclosed this today as it became clear President Johnson had chosen a relatively slow-paced course of building up the long haul in Viet Nam, rather than a quick buildup using reservists and national guardsmen.

A boost of some 300,000 regulars would swell U.S. military strength to about 3,000,000 men. Much of the increase would be applied to the army, sources said.

Among other things, the army will get one more division, probably mechanized infantry, to raise its division total to 17. More independent infantry brigades also are planned. An army division totals about 15,000 men, a brigade about 4,000. Johnson's move increasing the U.S. military commitment in Viet Nam by 50,000 men, to a total of 1,250,000, falls short of expectations. But it is considered likely further U.S. reinforcements, possibly as many as 50,000 more, may flow to the war zone by the end of the year.

The newly ordered strengthening of forces in Viet Nam is well below what would be needed to bring about a 10-1 or even an 8-1 margin of superiority over the Communists in the country. Some experts say such a ratio is essential.

To reach a margin of 10-1 or 8-1, another 650,000 to 900,000 Americans would have to be poured into Viet Nam to reinforce the 550,000 South Vietnamese troops and the Americans already there or due to arrive under current plans.

Defeat Certain For Greek Gov't

ATHENS (AP) — Enough Centre Union party deputies today committed themselves to voting against Greece's crisis government to kill its chance of winning a parliamentary confidence vote.

Ousted premier George Papandreou lined up 143 deputies against Premier George Athanasiadis Novas, whose 14-day-old government goes before parliament Friday to request endorsement.

Centre Union deputies met at a caucus with Papandreou.

Afterward a spokesman said 118 deputies attending the caucus, plus 25 others, adhered to a protocol calling for opposition to the palace-backed government.

Parliament will break its summer recess to debate the policy of the new premier, George Athanasiadis Novas, who is seeking a vote of confidence.

Full Consideration Promised by Thant

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant promised "most serious consideration" today to President Johnson's bid for more UN efforts to get the Communists to negotiate for peace in Viet Nam.

Johnson made his request in a letter delivered Wednesday by Arthur J. Goldberg when the new American chief delegate to the UN presented his credentials to Thant.

A U.S. spokesman said Thant told Goldberg he still believed the Viet Nam war must be solved "by peaceful means, either by the revival of the (1954) Geneva conference or some other agreed form of discussions."

Some UN diplomats expressed doubt Thant could get the Communists to the conference table since Red China and North Viet Nam have already rebuffed his efforts to launch negotiations. But some felt Johnson's support of Thant's peace efforts would make peace moves by the secretary-general easier. Johnson wrote Thant:

"Your efforts in the past to find some way to remove that (Viet Nam) dispute from the battlefield to the negotiating table are much appreciated and highly valued by my government. I trust they will be continued."

"Meanwhile, as I stated publicly last April, the government of the United States is prepared to enter into negotiations for peaceful settlement without conditions. That remains our policy."

Johnson told a press conference in Washington Wednesday that 15 efforts had been made to start talks with the Communists since the help of 40 nations throughout the world, but there has been no answer.

Montreal Holds Out As Toronto Men Back

OTTAWA (CP) — Joseph Belland, president of the Postal Workers Brotherhood, said today he hopes the return to work vote by Toronto postal workers will prompt striking Montreal workers to reconsider their position.

Mr. Belland, who learned of the result by telephone, said when he presidents of the three brotherhood unions return to the capital there will be a meeting to determine what approach will be taken to Montreal.

The presidents flew to Toronto Wednesday to persuade workers there to reverse a decision to stay out.

He said the Toronto vote "consolidates the rest of the country with the exception of Montreal."

The Brotherhood was now in a better position to deal with Montreal.

Vancouver workers voted Wednesday to halt their strike, leaving Montreal and Toronto the only major centres where work had come to a halt.

'We Must Boost Efforts,' Tsarapkin Tells Parley

GENEVA (Reuters) — Russia's chief disarmament negotiator said today President Johnson's decision to send more troops to Viet Nam was "not a right thing," and said the withdrawal of foreign troops and liquidation of bases now was more important than preventing the spread of nuclear arms.

Semyon Tsarapkin told reporters the U.S. decision to bolster its troops in Viet Nam was "not a right thing to contribute to the progress" of the Geneva disarmament conference. He said:

"In view of what is happening in Viet Nam and elsewhere, the withdrawal of foreign troops and the liquidation of military bases is even more important than the question of non-proliferation of nuclear arms."

NO ALTERNATIVE

Asked whether Russia would submit a plan of its own for non-dissemination, he replied: "No. What use is there as long as plans like the MLF and the ANF continue to exist?"

Russia has consistently opposed the U.S. plan for a multi-lateral nuclear force (MLF) and Britain's plan for an Atlantic nuclear force (ANF).

Asked if Russia would continue to attend the disarmament conference, the Soviet delegate replied:

"As I have said before, our efforts here even have to be increased."

He said he was "not competent" to say if Russia would increase aid to North Viet Nam following Johnson's announcement.

In the conference itself today, British Disarmament Minister Lord Chalfont told the 17-nation meeting it should start now to consider an agreement to ban the spread of nuclear weapons.

Chalfont, in his first speech to the conference which resumed Tuesday after a 10-month adjournment, said:

"In our view the most urgent requirement of all is a non-dissemination agreement."

PRaises U.S. PLAN

Chalfont read a statement from British Prime Minister Wilson praising a proposal by Johnson to freeze strategic nuclear delivery vehicles.

Chalfont himself reiterated a plea by Wilson for the negotiation of a non-dissemination treaty.

He added Britain believed the committee should now start to consider:

1. An agreement which would bind the nuclear powers not to transfer control of nuclear weapons to non-nuclear powers or to assist non-nuclear powers in making these weapons.

2. An agreement which would at the same time bind the non-nuclear powers neither to manufacture nor to seek control of nuclear weapons.

Canada is seeking an agreement similar to the one proposed by Britain, but one which would include sanctions against non-compliance.

'Our Business Is Teaching, Not Fighting,' Say Sisters

OTTAWA (CP) — Four local members of the Grey Sisters of the Immaculate Conception headed back for the embattled Dominican Republic Wednesday to resume teaching roles. It will mark the 14th consecutive year in the republic for Sister Ann of the Cross and the first for young Sister St. Pius. Along with Sister Mary Lenore they'll administer two public schools, while Sister Joan of Arc will direct one of the country's few high schools.

A Canadian priest serving the same mission as the sisters was shot to death recently but the sisters expressed no fear of returning to the crisis-torn island country.

"Our business is teaching and we intend to go on doing so," Sister Ann said in an interview.

Mission schools are government supported—but by which government?

"That's what we'd like to know," said one of the nuns. Their schools are in the country 20 to 50 miles from Santo Domingo. They don't expect the revolution—or the "trouble" as they refer to it—to interfere with their teaching.

The sisters have just finished a month's holiday here. They are among 10 sisters of their order serving in the republic.

Sense of Responsibility

POSTAL WORKERS HERE AND elsewhere in British Columbia have shown a commendable appreciation of their responsibilities to the public—and of their respect for the Postal Workers Brotherhood which recommended the course—by going back to work. They are well-advised to stay on the job, regardless of action in eastern Canada, while Judge Anderson is carrying on his studies of the dispute.

The commissioner is already on record endorsing a general increase of $360 for all categories concerned, thereby raising to the higher figure a substantial number who were offered $300. He has also let it be known that his final recommendation will include proposals for further increases.

This should be acceptable news for the postmen, whose restraint in this part of Canada is in contrast to the belligerence in the East. It is also evidence of the fact that the postal workers have made their point. Their case has been and is being given objective consideration. Thoughtful employees will no doubt weigh the reaction that can be expected if the day-to-day affairs of the nation continue to be disrupted by the action of a relatively few militants. Can the latter use the brute force of a prolonged strike to interfere with a vital service to 20 million people? And can a work stoppage be justified—against Brotherhood commitments—while what amounts to conciliation proceedings are in progress?

To ask such questions is to answer them. No society can tolerate for long this kind of threat to its well-being.

At present the prospects of a special session of Parliament to deal with the strike are discounted. But legislation already drafted to establish adequate bargaining rights for civil servants is scheduled for introduction at the next session. Such legislation does not now exist. It's time it did, with binding arbitration to provide a mutually fair method of avoiding in future dislocation of the type caused by the recent walk-out.

Consequences of U.S. Policy

IN AN ADJOINING COLUMN ON this page Mr. Walter Lippmann outlines with sharp realism the position of the United States in Viet Nam.

It was written before President Johnson yesterday announced the major increase of American forces for that theatre of war, but stands as penetrating comment on the most recent move.

Mr. Lippmann points out that Americans are to be pitted against Asians in Asia. The United States will have the help of a disintegrating South Vietnamese army and little but vocal support from her allies.

The situation, he argues, makes excellent propaganda for Red China which can point to Americans, representing the white, rich, capitalist great power, fighting Asians in their own land.

Mr. Johnson has restated the policy of his country. There will be no retreat, although he voiced the hope that negotiations will replace combat at arms and he has renewed his pledge to negotiate with "anyone, anywhere" if there is any chance of achieving a settlement.

The president also dwelt several times on the belief that one of the major items at stake in Viet Nam is the "national interest" of the United States and this, as Mr. Lippmann notes in his column, is one of the least certain factors in the whole situation. A few weeks ago when the president spoke about Viet Nam, he declared that "our national honor is at stake" and this, like the declaration of "national interest," is difficult for many people to understand.

Museum Piece In B.C. Law

THE CASE PRESSED PERSISTently by Oak Bay's Liberal MLA, Mr. Alan Macfarlane, for the abolition of the fiat in British Columbia gains strength from Quebec's action.

The ancient province, in its new civil code, has eliminated the provision which prevents an individual from suing the Crown without a fiat and denies the fiat in damage actions. Only three provinces in Canada now cling to this relic of early monarchical days when "the king could do no wrong."

Britain eliminated the fiat in

The New Highway Hazard

WITH PAINFUL REGULARITY the news columns these days are recording serious injury, sometimes critical injury, to young people involved in accidents on light motorbikes.

This was predicted when the new, relatively inexpensive vehicles came on the market.

Because of their lightness, coupled with what in most cases is moderate speed, they require both dexterity and care in their driving.

Already it has been found necessary to insist that those riding them wear crash helmets. This practice has reduced injury in many mishaps. But it can give limited protection only.

The contention has been advanced that they are unsafe when two people are riding, one of them pillion. Whether or not this is the case, the number of mishaps suggests that many people do not know how to handle them without serious risk.

A duty rests on parents to bring this point home to the young people. They are using machines which differ substantially in performance from the push bikes with which they grew up. If they hope to continue to grow up, many of them require a much more mature understanding of the responsibilities involved in driving.

"The boys of your lodge want you to join them on a fishing trip up Island last Saturday, Sunday, Monday and the day before yesterday."

ESCALATION IN VIET NAM

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Playing Into China's Hands

WE are about to pit Americans against Asians on the continent of Asia. Except for the diminishing and disintegrating South Vietnamese army, we have only token or verbal support from any Asian country. No great Asian power, Japan, India, or Pakistan, is aligned with us. None of our European allies is contributing anything beyond scattered verbal support. We have no mandate from the United Nations as we had in Korea, none from NATO, none from the nations of this hemisphere.

The situation in which we find ourselves is unprecedented, and the best administration has been able to achieve by way of approval and support from our own people is a reluctant and depressed acquiescence. For there has been no proof, not even a real attempt to prove, that the security of the United States is vitally threatened in this war as it was, for example, when Hitler was in sight of the conquest of Britain and the capture of the British fleet, or when Japan with a great navy threatened to command the whole Pacific Ocean, including Hawaii and the coast of California.

Nations fight well when they are defending themselves, when, that is to say, they have a vital interest. It is the lack of an American vital interest which explains the current mood of depression and anxiety, which explains why our intervention in Southeast Asia has for ten years been so gingerly, so furtive, so inadequate.

Lack of Vital Interest

There are in truth two main reasons why we are becoming ever more deeply involved in Viet Nam. The first, much the more powerful of the two, is a proud refusal to admit a mistake, to admit the failure of an attempt, begun ten years ago, to make South Viet Nam a pro-American and anti-Chinese state. More than anything else we are fighting to avoid admitting a failure—to put it bluntly, we are fighting to save face.

There is a second reason which weighs heavily with many conscientious people. It is a respectable reason. As stated by The New York Herald-Tribune on Sunday:

Policeman Role

"We're in Viet Nam at the express invitation of the Vietnamese government; we're fighting there for the Vietnamese people. But we're fighting also for the millions of people in the other threatened lands beyond, people who haven't the power to defend themselves from the Chinese colossus, and whose lives, safety and freedom depend on the strong arm of the policeman—which only we can provide."

My own view is that the conception of ourselves as the solitary policeman of mankind is a dangerous form of self-delusion. The United States is quite unable to police the world, and it is dangerous to profess and pretend that we can be the policeman of the world. How many more Dominican Republics can the United States police in this hemisphere?

How many Viet Nams can the United States defend in Asia?

The believers in America as the world policeman get around these practical difficulties by making an assumption—that what happens in Viet Nam will determine what happens elsewhere in Asia, that what happens in the Dominican Republic will determine what happens all over Latin America. This notion of the decisive test is a fallacy. The Korean war, in which we successfully defended South Korea, did not determine the outcome in Indo-China. What we have done in the Dominican Republic will not protect any other Latin American country from the threat of revolution.

Revolutionary wars are indeed dangerous to order and it is baffling to know how to deal with them. But we may be sure that the phenomenon of revolutionary wars, which is latent in all of the under-developed regions of the world, cannot be dealt with by American military intervention whenever disorder threatens to overwhelm the constituted authority. On the contrary, it is more likely that in making Viet Nam the test of our ability to protect Asia, we shall in fact provide revolutionary China with just the enemy it needs in order to focus popular hatred against us—a white, rich, capitalistic great power. We are allowing ourselves to be cast in the role of the enemy of the miserable and unhappy masses of the emerging nations.

FROM LONDON

By IVAN YATES

Updating the Mother

BRITAIN'S leading humorous weekly, "Punch," carried a cartoon the other day showing the Gothic pinnacles of the Houses of Parliament surmounted by an old-fashioned gramophone. Out of the loudspeaker, shaped like a foghorn, issued a series of cries: "Modernize industry," "modernize the law," "modernize the trade unions," "modernize Britain."

The record is often heard. For several years, political controversy in this country has centred on this single concept of modernization. On the Conservative side, it seemed to start in earnest after the rejection of Britain's application to join the Common Market. On the Labor side, Harold Wilson's succession to the leadership, after Hugh Gaitskell's death, led to a new emphasis on science and technology as an aid to the modernization of the British economy.

Impervious

Among all this bustle and debate, one institution seems impervious to change: Parliament itself. Since the last election, in October 1964, its procedure and voting habits, the hour of its sittings, and its decrepit accommodation have all come under heavy fire, particularly from new Labor members of the younger generation. But little has actually been done.

Now, all of a sudden, three separate groups of MPs are looking at different aspects of the procedure of parliament. The Select Committee on Procedure, a standing all-party group, is at work and, by all accounts, is about to come up with something sizable in the way of reform. The Parliamentary Labor Party is in process of setting up its own committee to mark out areas for reform.

It has been driven to do so by a third group, an unofficial ginger group of new Labor MPs, aided and advised by one or two of their colleagues, scarcely more senior. They feel frustrated beyond belief by the reverence for traditional ways shown by the House of Commons and are determined to feed the senior committee with carefully thought out proposals for reform. The Labor chief whip and the leader of the House both tried, to persuade them to disband but without success.

They intend to look at the way in which votes are counted to see if some less time-wasting method could not be found, perhaps by some electronic means. It takes 10 minutes to hold a House of Commons vote at present, and, of course, in the present state of the balance of parties in the House, invalids are brought long distances to vote in crucial divisions. Should there be some form of proxy voting under suitable safeguards? That is another question which is certain to be canvassed.

Clandestine Support

The members of this group are emboldened by the knowledge that they enjoy clandestine support from some of the bolder, younger, more modernizing spirits in the cabinet. This encourages them to ignore the quite fierce resentment shown by certain of the old Labor guard, who have come to regard the practices of Parliament with affection and awe. It takes years to understand some of the more complex procedures, and those who have managed this have a vested interest in keeping them undisturbed.

But the younger MPs look with a very critical eye at some of the ramshackle procedures. They intend to look at the system of standing committees, on which bills receive detailed scrutiny, to see if their use cannot be extended to embrace the finance bill, whose committee stage is traditionally taken on the floor of the House.

The finance bill was unusually complicated this year, but even so it has eaten an enormous quantity of time out of the amount available to MPs of all parties. The trouble with this, as with many other suggested reforms of the procedures of the Commons, is that, necessarily, they aim to economize in, and hence restrict, the time available for the scrutiny of legislation.

Opposition Restricted

Any such restriction must, to some extent, restrict the rights of the opposition, for it is pre-eminently their duty to scrutinize legislation. Time is thus a valuable asset to the opposition. It is, as it were, the ground on which the struggle for power is fought out. A timetable restricts that ground, and so hampers the mobility of an opposition and their opportunity to attack.

That is why there is a lot of humbug attached to discussion of these problems, and why governments and their supporters, particularly those too new even to have served in opposition, are traditionally more iconoclastic than their opposite numbers on the other side of the House.

Even so, there are many questions affecting the life of Parliament which can quite reasonably be considered. One of these is the entry of the television cameras. Another is the adoption of something like the American committee system, which discusses subjects functionally.

'Tit for Tat' In U.S. Aid

By CHARLES BARTLETT
from Washington

PRESIDENT JOHNSON is quietly shifting the character of the foreign aid program to put more emphasis on a "tit for tat" or "he who goes along gets" philosophy.

The shift has already drawn resentful mutterings from aid recipients in Cairo and Rawalpindi whose reach is longer than their allegiance to Washington. Warned that President Johnson is questioning their quality as critics and beneficiaries of American foreign policy, Ayub Khan of Pakistan and Gamal Nasser of Egypt have responded with cries of dollar imperialism.

The President's warnings have been gently conveyed to India and Algeria as well as to Egypt and Pakistan, but no one in Washington seems certain yet how far Mr. Johnson intends to bend the foreign aid program to his political objectives. This uncertainty has caused his move to be highly controversial within the state department.

Mr. Johnson's concern is that the nation's tolerance toward its critics has been overdone. Some depict Uncle Sam as a giant so muscle-bound that he is insensitive to constant bites from the mouths he is feeding. The President reportedly is anxious to assert a limit to the opposition he will accept from the recipients of American generosity.

Frustrations

Mr. Johnson's mood reflects the frequent frustrations of postwar American presidents at the gap that exists between their apparent world power and their actual leverage. "I have nothing except aid to make that man listen to me," John F. Kennedy once said in exasperation at the drift of former President Goulart of Brazil toward the communists. A great nation's power to persuade has dwindled seriously since battleships and special tariff concessions went out of fashion.

The President's move will be popular in Congress where the complaint that we are "building up their strength so they can burn down our embassies" is frequent. One senator recently cited findings that 35 nations to whom the United States gave $431 million in money and food in 1964 voted preponderantly with the Soviet Union during the UN's 18th General Assembly.

The Senate expressed its readiness in June to apply foreign aid to political ends by voting 59 to 24 to deny grants to Peru for extending her territorial waters to interfere with American fishing fleets. The majority rejected a warning by Sen. William Fulbright that this type of amendment "lends credence to criticism that we are trying to buy the subservience of the world by handing out a few dollars."

The Clay Committee, which took a conservative look at the old program in 1963, was as wary as Fulbright of giving aid for "political" reasons. "While a certain amount of this is unavoidable, there have been too many exceptions to this rule," the committee declared in warning that the non-economic use of aid will undermine the program's Congressional and domestic support, damage the will of the beneficiaries to help themselves, and weaken the power of American officials to negotiate for economic reforms.

Purist Argument

The purists argue now that the American aid program is aimed at helping the people instead of their governments. This premise dictates that aid should be cut off only if a nation persists in irresponsible policies which undercut the formation of economic stability, as in Indonesia, or if a nation achieves its economic take-off, as in Taiwan. This premise further suggests that the valid political purpose of aid is to eliminate the global instability that lies in the gaping disparity between the have and the have-not nations.

The President's new approach has a human appealing logic. But it is clear that a lack of skill and subtlety in pressing this approach will damage the character of the foreign aid program and diminish its long-term potential in exchange for fleeting advantages.

Unsung Hero

Re. the July 4 near drowning of J. Fleury at Elk Lake:

The experience of a near drowning is one of wonder. Why one should survive and yet another lose his life?

There is no doubt God does have a plan for each of our lives. Words of appreciation are indeed inadequate addressed to Brian Pearce, the life guard, Saanich firemen and Saanich police, but above all to the one, the unsung hero, Roy Moore. He it was who noticed my disappearance and found me at the bottom of the lake. He received no word of publicity and yet to his quick thinking I do actually, indirectly owe my life.

May I take this opportunity to publicly acknowledge with sincere gratitude all he did to bring about my rescue.—John Fleury, 689 Ralph.

Open-Muffler Plague

Recently the sufferers from the soul-destroying open-muffler plague were heartened to read that the authorities were considering noise control. Any relief? Not an iota! And the plague is spreading alarmingly with ever more motorbikes, sports cars, hot-rod and, yes, even more ordinary cars, blasting, roaring, and racketing along our streets—mufflers wide open—by day and by night.

How long must we wait for relief? ask the thousands who keep windows tightly closed in a vain effort to shut out the noise and then sweeter in hot, stuffy rooms so that needless youngsters, not content with riding their bikes or driving their cars along our lovely streets and boulevards may do so with as much noise as their ingenuity can devise.

Some years ago the unnecessary sounding of horns was prohibited. And how seldom one hears a horn today! The shattering racket of open mufflers is never necessary, except on motorbikes used by police racing to apprehend law-breakers.—"Shattered."

The National Electric Company has bought two large lots on Pembroke Street near the gas works on which it intends to build a large frame car house to hold 20 cars. Tenders now are being called for the erection of the building. Object of the expansion is to store extra cars since a large number of new ones will be ordered for delivery in September. Cost of the new cars is $70,000.

Gordon Steps Cautiously Ever-Fearful of Slip

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA—President Johnson's great aversion to being correctly anticipated has become well known, as when newsmen forecast what the president was going to say at the United Nations' 20th anniversary ceremonies at San Francisco in June.

The president kept Secretary of State Dean Rusk and others at the White House until 2 a.m., re-writing his speech. And it's said the reason he was so angry over Prime Minister Pearson's Philadelphia speech, calling for a halt in the bombing of North Viet Nam, was that Mr. Pearson anticipated Mr. Johnson's intention.

Finance Minister Walter Gordon has the same aversion to anticipation, but for another reason. His was not Johnsonian egomania, but rather an inordinate fear of being censured for leaking secrets, especially budget secrets. His use of "outside experts" in preparing his first budget two years ago nearly ruined him; now he takes no chances.

When the federal-provincial conference was near its end last week, Mr. Gordon told newsmen that the government had agreed to rebate to the provinces all but 5 per cent of the federal income tax on privately-owned electric, gas and steam power companies.

This rebate will enable the provinces to return the tax to the companies, they in turn will be expected to, reduce commensurately the rates they charge for power.

Then Mr. Gordon revealed the provinces had not had to argue very hard, because he had been ready to make this concession in his April 26 budget.

Waring

"Why didn't you do it in the budget?" someone asked.

Gordon looked nonplussed. Then, after a pause to search for words, he blurted:

"Well, to be perfectly frank with you, there were certain public statements made at the time that I had agreed to do this, and I had not, and I thought another time would be an appropriate time."

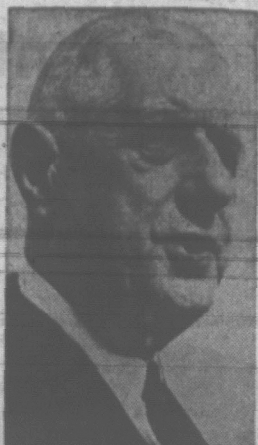

The finance minister likely was referring to a statement by the Alberta minister of industry and development, A. R. Patrick, some weeks before the budget. Mr. Patrick was reported to have said that the tax concession, for which Alberta was pressing, would be announced in the budget.

Mr. Gordon thereupon deleted the tax cut. One might suppose that if Mr. Patrick had kept quiet, the power companies and their customers would have benefited sooner than the Jan. 1 next date that Mr. Gordon has set for the rebate to start.

Not only the power companies and their customers have had to pay for Mr. Patrick's volubility and Mr. Gordon's timidity. The Churchill (Hamilton) Falls Power Development was stalled over the sale price of power to Quebec Hydro—and both politicians and experts said that if only the company developing the falls, Brinco, didn't have to pay federal taxes it could afford to sell at Quebec's price.

Newfoundland's Premier Smallwood was delighted by the tax concession, because it seems likely to unjam Churchill Falls. And Mr. Gordon chimed in that there's "no single project we would sooner see started and started soon than development at Hamilton Falls."

Maybe he should have thought of that when he deleted the tax concession from his budget.

DE GAULLE

JUST WHAT'S BEHIND THE DE GAULLE THAW?

By JOSEPH GRIGG

PARIS — French President Charles de Gaulle appears to have decided to warm up deep-frozen U.S.-French relations—a few degrees, at least.

American officials here, accustomed to being on the receiving end of de Gaulle's diplomatic blasts, are mystified but gratified.

However, they see no signs of a major thawing out of relations now or in the foreseeable future. There are far too many deep-seated and unresolved sources of friction such as the Atlantic (NATO) Alliance, nuclear policy and de Gaulle's attacks on the dollar.

But American diplomats have detected an easing up of pressure by De Gaulle in recent months.

His talk with Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey last month was by all accounts a success. De Gaulle was said to have been at his most cordial and charming.

Toned Down

At a recent NATO Permanent Council session devoted to discussion of the Viet Nam conflict the French delegate omitted the usual caustic De Gaulle-inspired criticisms of American policy.

Roving U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, when he passed through Paris on his way to Moscow recently, was shown every possible consideration.

Although it was not announced at the time, appointments were set up for him on short notice with Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and several other key Quai D'Orsay officials.

He Blew Up

The recent so-called "spy plane" incident at the Pierrelatte nuclear plant was said to have touched off an explosion of De Gaulle's ire when he first heard about it.

But the official French protest was in measured terms. The government damped down any anti-U.S. campaign in the press and official statements. The American apology was followed up by an immediate statement that the French now considered the incident "closed."

Must Be Reason

De Gaulle's recent speeches also have been relatively devoid of verbal rockets against the United States or American "hegemony."

From all this American officials here can only assume De Gaulle has decided to be more agreeable—or less disagreeable—to the United States at the moment and that there presumably must be a reason.

What the reason is can only be a matter for guesswork.

One suggestion is that De Gaulle may be paving the way diplomatically for a new move by him to act as mediator in the Viet Nam conflict.

Concerned

Another suggestion is that De Gaulle may genuinely have become concerned by reports of growing anti-French feeling in the United States.

But the deep-rooted sources of friction between Paris and Washington remain. Nothing points at the moment to any prospect of resolving them.

DIRKSEN

BOOMERANG CLIPS THE SENATOR

WASHINGTON — Senator Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill.) has disclosed that he was the unwitting source of a report which swept Capitol Hill last week that Secretary of State Dean Rusk would be appointed U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations.

Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, said he speculated in a casual conversation with a reporter, "Well, they might move Dean Rusk up there."

Within an hour, Dirksen said, he got a call from a friend in New York asking about the Rusk report.

When Dirksen disclaimed any knowledge of it, his caller asked: "Don't you read the news wires?"

Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg was appointed later in the week to succeed Adlai Stevenson.

Lincoln Replica 'Ghastly Mistake'

WASHINGTON—War is being waged over Lincoln's effigy.

Last August, U.S. Congress authorized the state department to give Mexico a statue of Lincoln during the 1965 centenary of his death.

The Commission on Fine Arts, following the wishes of the House committee on foreign affairs for a "recognizable likeness," advised the state department to use a replica of an 1887 "standing Lincoln" by Augustus Saint-Gaudens.

But now Carl Tolpo, an Illinois sculptor who specializes in Lincolns, says modern artists such as himself have been snubbed and that the commission is making "a ghastly mistake" in choosing a replica of a work "which makes Lincoln look like Napoleon Bonaparte."

Tolpo still hopes to produce an original Lincoln for Mexico, but the statue statemate was further complicated recently by complaints from Charles H. Atherton, commission secretary, that the House's $100,000 appropriation is not enough to pay for a Saint-Gaudens replica.

Aquatic Sand-Dwellers Nature's Mechanical Marvels

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

One of the biggest problems that aquatic sand-dwelling animals have to solve is to maintain a passage way for the flow of water.

An almost continuous stream is necessary to bring in dissolved air and food materials and to carry out waste. The difficulty arises from the tendency for sand to fall into the passage where it blocks the flow of water or is carried into the "inner workings" of the animal.

Clams which spend all but their larval life buried in sand or sandy mud use their siphon or "neck" to keep the burrow open to the water above them. This is done by keeping the siphon extended upwards to the surface of the sand like a stand-pipe holding the sand in place.

On occasions when the siphon is withdrawn, as when alarmed by some disturbance top-side, any sand which falls into the tunnel can be pushed aside by the muscular walls or shot out by a jet of water.

Dr. Carl

Some worms make more permanent holes by lining the tubes with a tougher material in which the grains of sand become imbedded to form a flexible pip-like case. The upper portions of these habitations are continually broken off by wave action but are quickly replaced by the worm at the first opportunity. The broken pieces are carried ashore to form windrows of flattened cases cast upon the beach.

A number of crabs, including the mole crab which is occasionally found on exposed sandy beaches, make a water passage with the antennae or feelers which are especially modified to form a tube when fitted together. This device permits the animal to remain buried with only the tips of the antennae showing above the surface. A grid of hair-like spines prevents sand from entering the gill-chamber and filters on the mouth parts remove food from the water as it is pumped by.

Fishes like skates and rays that habitually rest on the bottom partly covered with sand are provided with special openings on the upper surface of the head for the entry of water into the gill chambers.

These spiracles are located in such a way as to minimize the chances of sand being drawn into the breathing chamber and valves within the passage-way permit the water to flow in only one direction. The gill slits or exit ports are on the underside of the fish's head so that the discharge can fan out beneath the flattened body.

The flounders, soles and sanddabs also hide partly buried in sand but these more advance forms lack a spiracle. In fishes of this group the water enters the mouth and no special provision is necessary to keep sand out. Any foreign matter can be expelled by sudden spurts of water.

The hatchet-shaped sand fish, however, buries itself completely in sand and to prevent sand from being carried into the gill chamber the lips are fringed to form a screen.

The variety of animals living in this shifting medium is surprisingly large and each kind of animal seems to have solved its mechanical problems by a method that is nothing short of ingenious.

Send questions in natural history to Dr. Cliff Carl, care of the Victoria Daily Times.

Who Said Upton Sinclair Is Dead?

'I Preached Until World Got Tired of Me'

By SUE CRONK

WASHINGTON — Upton Sinclair, who turned out 90 books during his 86 years, doesn't write any more.

"I've had my say" the once controversial muckracker announced with satisfaction as he sipped a glass of pineapple juice over a game of Scrabble.

"I preached to the world till the world got tired of hearing me. Besides, 90's an even number."

The indefatigable crusader for social justice, who used to provoke such figures as Teddy Roosevelt into such outbursts as "tell Sinclair to go home and let me run the country!" is spending the summer in Washington.

With him is his third wife, Mary Elizabeth, 82, whom he married in 1961 and took to live in a Spanish-style villa in the foothills of the Sierra Madres at Monrovia, Calif.

'A Recluse'

"Upton's really a recluse," she said, patting his hand. "The other day I was introduced to a woman as Mrs. Upton Sinclair and she asked, 'are you kidding?' No, I said, 'and I'm just as surprised as you are.' I thought he was dead, too, until I was invited to meet him at luncheon a few years ago." Sinclair's blue-green eyes twinkled behind rimless spectacles as he draped an arm around her shoulders and said, "You say anything that comes into your blessed noodle."

Books By Ton

A comfortable couple, the Sinclairs joshed each other as they talked about his works, including the eight tons of books, manuscripts and correspondence he has sold to the Lilly Library of Indiana University.

When Mrs. Sinclair poured herself a bourbon on the rocks, the slight, white-haired author remarked:

"The only alcoholic beverage that ever passed my lips was when I was a boy in the Episcopal Church—and I took a sip of Communion wine. I haven't been back since, except when I married you, and then I was going for a specific purpose."

Vegetarian

In addition to being a teetotaler, Sinclair is a vegetarian.

... still a socialist

"I used to have a hot head, cold feet and indigestion. It was the story of my life," he said. "So I tried every crank diet I ever heard of. For the last 15 years, three times a day, I've eaten plain whole rice boiled with any kind of fruit that's in season, and I haven't had a single headache."

These days Sinclair reads as voraciously as he used to write. "I subscribe to about 50 magazines—the Independent, the New Republic, anything I can get my hands on. Not the National Review, of course, although sometimes I read it in the dentist's office. William Buckley and I could have some lively arguments."

Relief for All

There probably are few political writers—or politicians with whom Sinclair couldn't argue—"I'm for public ownership of all basic industries... I favor relief for every person in the country who can't find a job."

But when it comes to President Johnson, he is "delighted with everything he's doing. I haven't anything to teach him, which is unusual on my part."

Shades of 1934

Sinclair is especially pleased with the president's war on poverty, which reminds him of his own epic "End Poverty in California" campaign for governor in 1934.

"I'm quite certain nobody will ever starve again in California," he said. "I scared the state out of its wits by almost winning."

Reminiscing about his books, which have been translated into 70 languages, Sinclair said he is "happy in the thought that I helped cause some social changes. You're not eating rotten meat now, as you were before I wrote 'The Jungle'."

That classic 1905 expose of the foul conditions in Chicago's meat-packing plants led to passage of the country's first Pure Food and Drug Act and became Sinclair's best-known work.

'Mercy Me'

Yet neither "The Jungle" nor "Dragon's Teeth," the novel in which he won the Pulitzer Prize for fiction, have given the Baltimore-born author such personal satisfaction as "Our Lady," his novelette about the mother of Christ.

Politically, Sinclair derives his greatest pleasure from watching the Democrats go up the road to socialism. I may have run for governor on the Democratic ticket, but mercy me, I'm still an ardent and devoted socialist."

CENTENNIAL PROJECTS

$75 Millions Now Earmarked

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's three levels of government now are committed to spend $75,000,000 on "lasting" projects to mark the 1967 centennial and this figure will rise sharply in the next two years.

The centennial commission set up two years ago has approved 443 recreational and cultural projects of a permanent nature and predicts the total will reach 2,000 by July 1, 1967.

The approved projects will cost an estimated $27,332,446, with the federal and provincial governments and municipalities sharing the burden, the commission said in a progress report today.

Federal grants amount to $5,838,636 to date and are expected to reach $20,000,000 in 1967. The provinces will spend roughly the same sum.

In addition, the federal government has started construction on a $25,000,000 centre for performing arts here and granted $2,500,000 to each of the 10 provinces for major cultural or public buildings.

PASS 443 PROJECTS

The provinces have submitted 115 local projects to the centennial commission in addition to the 443 already approved.

Most popular projects at the municipal level are recreational facilities. These include parks, recreation centres, hockey and curling rinks, golf courses, bandshells and nature trails.

A wide range of cultural projects also have received federal and provincial aid—community halls, libraries, museums, art galleries, archives and local history projects.

Municipalities in Ontario and Saskatchewan have been far more active in planning centennial projects than the other provinces.

A total of 222 Ontario projects have been approved, compared with only 13 in Quebec. Twelve more Ontario projects and four in Quebec being considered by the commission.

Saskatchewan has the green light for 121 projects and has submitted 28 more. British Columbia, with a much larger population, has submitted only nine.

Modernize Ports

LONDON (Reuters)—A $150,000,000 ($450,000,000) plan for the modernization of Britain's ports was submitted to the government Wednesday. The National Ports Council, which advises the transport minister, selected 14 ports where it said improvements are urgently necessary to cope with expansion of trade expected during the next 15 years.

projects to date, eight of which have been approved.

These are a community centre for Lake Cowichan district; a recreation centre at Cherryville; Sunset Prairie-Willow Valley, a community centre; West Creston, a community centre; Fort St. John, a swimming pool; Deer Lodge, a park and playground; Farmington, a park; and Silver Creek, an addition to the community hall. Total cost of these projects is $149,919.

P.E.I. STILL DECIDING

Prince Edward Island, which spent heavily last year on celebrations commemorating the 1964 "Fathers of Confederation" conference in Charlottetown, has not approved any 1967 projects, but a provincial announcement is expected shortly.

The number of approved projects in the other provinces follows (projects under consideration by the commission are bracketed):

Newfoundland, 29 (4); Nova Scotia, 10 (6); New Brunswick, 32 (12); Manitoba, 23 (8); and Alberta, 14 (1).

Following is the total estimated cost of lasting projects in each province (federal contributions in brackets):

Newfoundland, $925,273 ($234,936); Nova Scotia, $430,350 ($388,833); New Brunswick, $1,609,140 ($276,293); Quebec, $6,585,000 ($2,195,000); Ontario, $10,250,625 ($2,092,569); Manitoba, $519,635 ($89,895); Saskatchewan, $2,204,894 ($180,336); Alberta, $4,657,630 ($668,304); and British Columbia, $149,919 ($12,670).

TOKYO (Reuters)—Russia released Wednesday 14 Japanese fishermen held since July 3 on charges of violating Russian territorial waters in the Northern Pacific, the Japanese fishery agency announced.

Edmonton Plunged Into Darkness

EDMONTON (CP)—Lightning struck a major Edmonton electrical system transformer Tuesday night, triggering circuit breakers and plunging much of the city into darkness. Power was restored progressively after the brief storm but some isolated areas still were without power two hours later. City electrical engineers said part of the trouble may have been caused by lightning striking a circuit tie between the city system and that of Calgary Power Ltd. Calgary Power reported brief outages in west-end Jasper Place and at St. Albert, 10 miles northwest of Edmonton. The Dominion weather office at Edmonton said the storm was one of several which swept across northern Alberta. Isolated thunderstorms were reported in the rest of the province.

WORLD'S BIGGEST POWER PROJECT, the Bratsk hydro-electric dam in south-central Siberia, stretches more than three miles across the

Giant Siberia Hydro Dam Key to Northern Russia

During a 14,000-mile tour of Siberia, John Best, Canadian Press Moscow correspondent, was shown a huge hydro-electric power project at Bratsk. He describes the development in this story.

By JOHN BEST
BRATSK, Siberia (CP) — Soviet power authorities are fond of quoting Lenin's dictum that "electrification will remake Russia."

The Bratsk hydro-electric power project is a striking symbol of the determination to make the prophecy come true. Stretching more than three miles across the Angara River in the backwoods country of south-central Siberia, it has a capacity — or soon will have, when the last of its 20 generators goes into operation — of 4,500,000 kilowatts, greatest of any hydro installation in the world.

It is nearly double the planned impressive. It is 414 feet high. Its lake is 360 miles long and 2,000 miles in circumference. The dam's centre portion, 4,500 feet wide, holds 168,960,000 cubic feet of concrete and its earthen flanks contain 422,400,000 cubic feet of earth.

The power capacity of Bratsk is greater than that of all the power stations on both sides of the Niagara River whose capacities total about 4,000,000 kilowatts.

It is nearly double the planned capacity—2,270,000 kilowatts—at Portage Mountain on the Peace River in northern British Columbia.

And in Canada it will be exceeded only by the 5,000,000-kilowatt Churchill Falls project in Labrador.

Work on the Bratsk dam began eight years ago. The first power began flowing 3½ years ago.

Asked how much it cost, construction boss Aron Gindin said: "It cost 200,000,000 rubles less than anticipated — 20 per cent." That would make the figure 800,000,000 rubles.

It's difficult to say how many dollars that represents. At the official exchange rate the ruble is worth about $1.20 Canadian but in international markets it's worth about one-third of the Canadian dollar.

Across the top of the dam runs a railway spur connecting with the transcontinental Siberian line about 175 miles east of here at Tayshet. The dam also carried a two-lane highway.

Before the waters of the Angara River rose, 73,000 people had to be moved from areas to be flooded. Fourteen thousand small farms had to be abandoned. Many of the people were brought into Bratsk to help build the dam and accompanying industrial development here.

Six hundred thousand acres of forest was buried under Angara's floodwaters, though not before nearly a billion cubic feet of timber was removed.

LISTEN FOR TROUBLE

The dam is built on solid rock and anchored in rock on both sides. To detect trouble, three inspectors are constantly at work with electronic sounding devices listening for tell-tale "singing" in the concrete.

Though the dam is believed working well short of capacity at present, even for the 16 generators installed, electricity is being carried on seven high-voltage wires totalling 1,300 miles in length to towns and development sites in central Siberia.

An illustration of how water power is transforming this part of the Soviet Union is Bratsk itself. Ten years ago there was nothing here but forest and bears.

Now there are 140,000 people. Huge apartment blocks, looking depressingly like those in every Soviet city, are being pushed to completion, and many live in private and semi-private dwellings. Services and facilities lag behind community growth. Roads are primitive and bumpy and the smell of dust is everywhere. But there is a well-equipped community hall, a movie theatre and television.

Deposits in Banks Continue to Soar

OTTAWA (CP)—Personal savings deposits in Canada's chartered banks amounted to $9,410,000,000 at the end of June, an increase of 6.8 per cent over the mid-year figure in 1964, the Bank of Canada reported today.

The June figure this year was half of one per cent higher than the May 31 total of $9,361,000,000.

The $9,410,000,000 at the mid-year point represented more money in the bank for the average Canadian, both in dollar value and in purchasing value. In the time from mid-year 1964, the consumer price index rose 2.7 per cent and the population about 2 per cent.

Car Company Profits Rise

NEW YORK (AP)—Chrysler Corp. achieved record sales and profits in the first six months and the second quarter of this year, the No. 3 automaker in the United States reported today.

Earnings totalled $118,400,000, or $2.91 a share, in the first half, compared with $114,400,000, or $2.85 a share, in the 1964 first half. More shares were outstanding in the 1965 period than a year earlier.

First half sales rose to $2,600,000,000 from $2,100,000,000, a gain of 28 per cent.

In the second quarter earnings totalled $61,800,000, or $1.47 a share, against $60,600,000, or $1.56 a share, a year earlier.

Sales increased to $1,400,000,000 from $1,100,000,000.

Directors authorized the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a common share, payable Sept. 1 to shareholders of record Aug. 9.

China Tour Set

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Manitoba Farmers Union announced today that it is organizing a three-week tour of China for its members and other interested persons. Departure will be from Vancouver Sept. 25. A similar tour was organized last year by the Farmers Union of Alberta.

Dead-End Road For Dropouts

"If someone had only told me— That's the refrain, repeated over and over again, by dropouts who said, 'I'm different. I can make it.' Read in August Reader's Digest how discouraging it is to be 'last hired, first fired' and going nowhere." Is it really that bad? This important article says, "Much worse!" ## CAR SAFETY UNDER STUDY BY CANADIANS

TORONTO (CP)—Consultations have started between the Ontario government and the Canadian auto industry to discuss ways of making safer cars.

Transport Minister Irwin Haskett met Tuesday with directors of the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers' Association and presidents of major auto manufacturing firms.

An auto industry spokesman said the manufacturers are adopting a voluntary program of keeping the government informed about safety developments. Provincial officials are studying what steps are to be taken to make cars and highways safer, he said.

Steel Sales Boom

NEW YORK (AP)—Bethlehem Steel Co., the No. 2 steelmaker in the United States, reported Wednesday a sharp gain in sales and earnings for the first half of this year. Profits for the first half totalled $89,200,000, or $1.94 a share, compared with $68,650,000, or $1.44 a share, in the 1964 first half. Sales rose to $1,383,990,000 from $1,078,092,000.

Boat Construction Planned at Airport

Building boats at an airport may not sound too sensible, but that's what Pelagic Pacific Industries are going to do at Victoria International Airport.

Company officials announced today that they have obtained facilities at the Fairley Aviation Co. plant at Patricia Bay for their fiberglass boat construction.

To be built in the new plant will be the Pacific 40 and Pacific 50 sailboats, both well known as Swiftsure Race-club tenders.

The company will also build the Deep Vee 31 and the Off-shore 28 power boats and ship's lifeboats.

In addition the company will build under licence fiberglass boats and industrial equipment on a contract basis.

We Have Much in Common, Macnaughton Tells Soviets

MOSCOW (AP)—The Speaker of the Canadian House of Commons was quoted Wednesday as saying all foreign nations should withdraw from Viet Nam and leave its people alone.

"We should like this problem to be resolved on a fair basis in respect to all sides concerned," Alan Macnaughton said in an interview published by the Soviet magazine New Times and summarized by Tass news agency.

New Times is published in many languages for distribution outside the Soviet Union.

Macnaughton is a leader, with Liberal Senator David Croll of Ontario, of a Canadian parliamentary delegation now touring the Soviet Union.

The Canadian charge d'affaires in Moscow, J. C. Gordon Brown, held a reception for the 14 members of Parliament today. It was attended by Soviet Vice-President Georgi Dvornichenko, Deputy Foreign Minister Mikhail Zimyanin and other officials.

CITES GOAL OF TRIP

Macnaughton was quoted by New Times as saying, "the main purpose of our trip is to improve relations between the peoples of Canada and the Soviet Union."

"Now that an exchange of scientists, teachers and students has started, and trade has become livelier, the time has come for political leaders to visit each other, too," Macnaughton said.

"We are striving to learn more about the life of your country, Russia is our northern neighbor," he said.

Macnaughton said Canada had won freedom and independence in struggle and "the same holds true of the Soviet people. There is much in common not only in the national character but also in the climate and nature of our two countries."

Earlier the delegation won a promise from high Soviet officials that they will see what can be done to help Russians wishing to join relatives now living in Canada.

The pledge was made at a 2½-hour meeting between the touring parliamentarians and a group of executives and legislators headed by Jan Peyve, chairman of the council of nationalities of the Supreme Soviet.

The meeting took place after the Canadian delegation had returned to Moscow from a six-day journey to Tiflis in Georgia, Sochi on the Black Sea, Kiev and Leningrad.

The problem of divided families has long been a source of friction in relations between Canada and Russia. Hundreds of former Soviet citizens now living in Canada are seeking to have their kinfolk, still living in the Soviet Union, join them.

However, Soviet officials have been allowing only a trickle of would-be emigrants to go, although the process has speeded up slightly in recent months.

The subject was brought up at Wednesday's meeting by Senator Croll, Kenneth More, Conservative MP for Regina City, and Jack Roxburgh, Liberal MP for Norfolk.

Peyve and the other Soviet officials promised to look into the matter and do what they could to expedite the reunification process, conference sources said.

Massey's Son Dies at 49 In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Lionel Massey, elder son of former Governor-General Vincent Massey, died here Wednesday at the age of 49.

Mr. Massey was associate director of the Royal Ontario Museum here. He had held the position since 1960, when he was appointed to the newly-created post.

During the Second World War, he served as a captain with the King's Royal Rifles. He was wounded and taken prisoner during the campaign in Greece.

After his return to England in 1944, he met Mrs. Douglas Van Buskirk.

Her husband, an American serving in the RCAF, had been killed in action and she was working as an ambulance driver with the British Red Cross when she met Mr. Massey.

They were married in Ottawa in 1946.

The Beaver Club in Canada restricts its membership to men who have been saved from death in the lumber industry through safety equipment.

Four Charged In Parking Racket

OTTAWA (CP)—Four persons were charged in magistrate's court Wednesday with attempting to obstruct justice in the wake of claims by an unidentified citizen that he could expose a racket involving the fixing of city traffic tickets.

The informer is said to have demanded $7,000 for his information.

Charged are: Mrs. Helen Harrison, 25, a civilian clerk for five years in the police department administration offices; Rodolphe Lefebvre, 55, a foreman with the city parking authority; Rodolphe Landriault, 32, and a trucker; and his mother Mrs. Louise Landriault, 63.

All but Mrs. Harrison appeared in court Wednesday and were remanded to Aug. 4 without plea. Mrs. Harrison's lawyer, Dan Chilcott, said his client was confined to bed.

MAYOR APPROACHED

Mayor Don Reid said Wednesday hints of a racket first came to the attention of the city during one of his "open house sessions" last March. Each month the mayor opens his office to the public and it was on one of these occasions, Mr. Reid said, that an unidentified man told the mayor he had information but wanted to be paid for it.

City council last week passed legislation authorizing it to pay rewards for information. Mayor Reid said that within an hour after city council approved the reward system, a meeting was going on in city hall with city solicitor Donald Hambling, Police Chief Reginald Axcell and the informer.

Police department spokesmen say they believe only traffic summonses were involved in the alleged ticket fixing.

Can Gilbey's London Dry and ginger ale live happily together?

The answer is a blissful yes.

Gilbey's London Dry has a perfect balance of flavour for all mixed gin drinks.

The flavour of some other gins is either too strong—or utterly tasteless.

But Gilbey's dry flavour has been an international favourite since 1873. Quite a long time.

Gilbey's London Dry lives in perfect harmony with the lively taste and effervescence of ginger ale.

Prove it to yourself. Tonight.

Note: use a few crushed leaves of mint as a garnish.

Have you tried this happy marriage of flavour?

ISLAND DIGEST

Murder Charge Goes to Trial

NANAIMO (CP)—Cosmos Johnson, 25, was committed Wednesday to stand trial for non-capital murder in the beating death of his 25-year-old wife Margaret at their home in Friendly Cove.

The woman's body was found in a bedroom of the home June 19.

A pathologist testified at Johnson's preliminary hearing that a blow to the head delivered by a blunt instrument caused her death. The body was covered with cuts and bruises.

She had a blood-alcohol content of .25 per cent. The normal impairment factor is regarded as .15 per cent.

Johnson will stand trial at the fall assizes in Nanaimo.

Run Over By Train, He Lives

NANAIMO — Laborer John Day was run over by a freight train Wednesday—and lived.

The 24-year-old Nanaimo man was pulled from beneath the giant diesel and rushed to hospital where he was in fairly good condition today.

The accident happened near the Fifth Street junction on the outskirts of Nanaimo.

Coming round a bend the train engineer suddenly noticed Day lying between the tracks.

He braked but was unable to stop in time.

The engine hit Day, rolling him between the tracks. Today he was recovering from a crushed back, broken ankle and multiple cuts and bruises.

RCMP said Day was apparently sleeping between the tracks. Had he been laying across the tracks he would almost certainly have been killed.

Preview of Nanaimo Art Show

One of 70 paintings on display in Nanaimo this weekend is this bird scene being held up by artist Stephen Lowe, of Victoria. Mr. Lowe will be present in the Tully-Ho Travelodge for the three-day show starting Friday to explain his paintings and give demonstrations of brush work. Most of Mr. Lowe's works depict birds, flowers and Chinese scenes, in both black and white and water color. A former student of the Institute of Chinese Art in Hong Kong, Mr. Lowe teaches at Victoria Art Gallery as well as at night classes for Victoria school board. He also owns the Ling Fong Art Studio, 1209 Yukon Street, Victoria. His exhibition will be open 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. through to Sunday night. (Times Photo.)

BOOK THROWN AT YOUTHS FOR ROUSTING CAMPERS

CAMPBELL RIVER — Just one week after extra protection was promised campers, police here cracked down on two local youths.

The youths were hauled into court here Wednesday and charged with creating a disturbance by impeding or molesting.

Terrence Johnson, 20, was fined $200 for the offence. He was fined a further $50 for being a minor in possession of liquor.

Reimond Geoffrey Luoma, also 20, was similarly fined for the liquor offence and was to be tried today on the disturbance charge.

Both live at Quathiaqui Cove on Quadra Island.

In addition to the fines, police seized the car owned by Luoma's mother and which Luoma was driving when the offence was committed.

Court was told that schoolteacher Robert Hamacher, of Monterey, Calif., and a group of teenagers were harassed Tuesday night at Rebecca Spit Park on Quadra Island.

FOLLOWED

Mr. Hamacher drove five miles to the ferry landing to summon police. He said he was followed by another car which tried to sideswipe him.

A spate of similar incidents throughout the province last week spurred the provincial government into promising stronger security patrols at camps and trailer parks.

MORE BEERMANSHIP FROM MOLSON CANADIAN

Use our brewmaster's method of washing beer glasses.

Your beer will taste better. If there's even a slight film (or "bloom") on your glass, your beer will lose its head. Maybe even its life. The film cuts down a beer's carbonation and knocks the flavour out of it. So our brewmaster's glass-washing secret can help you enjoy your beer more.

Wash your glasses in suds, the normal way.

Rinse them under the cold water tap. (Hot water leaves a bloom.)

How can you tell if your glasses are really clean? Easy! As you drink your beer the foam will cling to the side of the glass. Now that they've passed the test — enjoy Molson Canadian — a great beer — at its best in a "beer clean" glass.

It's the light beer that's all beer.

Now let 'em drain. Don't use a towel.

CONFUCIUS MIGHT HAVE SAID IT:

Children Who Wreck Fountain Soon Have No Place to Drink

LAKE COWICHAN — Village children have robbed themselves of an oasis this summer.

Youngsters have been damaging the fountain in Riverside Park and wasting water — so the village council has decided to remove it.

Clerk Bill Chappell said it has become too expensive to keep repairing damage.

Council had water on the mind this week.

It debated a school board request to allow an automatic lawn sprinkler system at the high school.

Chairman Mrs. Mildred Child was over-ruled in her objection that the new system would use too much water.

Council was told by works foreman Vic Palmer use of the school system at night would not affect the village supply.

Coun. Herbert Halliday said sprinkling would only be required for another month this year and next year council hopes to install a larger pumping unit.

The school system was approved. It will pump 30 gallons per minute.

Two new sewage pumping units may be bought next year.

Medicare Okayed By U.S. Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate climaxed Wednesday a fight that began 30 years ago by approving a bill that would expand the social security system to provide a new health care program for the 19,000,000 Americans 65 and older.

The measure, which won House of Representatives approval Tuesday, now goes to President Johnson, who is expected to sign it into law this week.

Sir Thomas More, one of the great English figures of the renaissance, is the subject of this contemporary play which introduced drama into Renaissance 65, the University of Victoria summer festival, Wednesday night.

A Man For All Seasons also introduced the new Gordon Head Campus Phoenix Theatre to the first night audience.

The small theatre, which seats 180-odd persons, with its interesting and extremely flexible multi-level thrust stage, is the design of Uvic Drama Division's Robert Hedley.

Opening a new theatre is often attended by some unwelcome bugs, but it was unfortunate that a major problem with lighting installations should have caused a 25-minute delay in the premiere night's starting time.

However, Carl Hare's production of this major London and Broadway success offered some recompense.

He is a director of outstanding ability when it comes to the use of the multi-level stage.

Among the cast there was some brilliant talent. One was intrigued and amused with Harry Hill's Common Man—his matter-of-fact tossing in of lines as he unearthed props from trapdoors in the stage; his agile re-arrangement of furniture between scenes.

A deeply moving, well controlled and completely convincing performance as More's daughter by Susan McFarlane, highlighted each scene in which she appeared.

Frederic DeSantis gave us a powerfully malevolent Cromwell; John Getgood a vividly mannered performance as the Spanish Chapuys; Margaret Hall a sharp-tongued, emotionally intense characterization as More's wife.

Anthony Jenkins, despite poise, sincerity, charm—and despite some scenes played superbly; with Cromwell for example but most notably the prison meeting with his family—did not in the impression one carried away from the theatre, appear as a man of strength and greatness.

Bolt has presented us with the picture of More as a family man, devoted to wife and daughter and, after his rejection of public office and tacit opposition to Henry VIII one who wished only to be left to obscure poverty.

But More should surely be shown in stronger colors and contrasts than he is represented in this production.

A Man For All Seasons will be repeated each night through Saturday. Following opening of Twelfth Night, Tuesday, the two plays will continue in repertory.

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

Now is the time to offer many close-out items in the bargain basement. You are welcome to lug away as many as you like.

These have been carried in stock, aged on the spike or in the proprietor's pockets, for days and weeks and even months. All merchandise has been marked down to less than the cost of acquiring it.

Sorry, no mail orders, no C.O.D., no delivery. All sales final, no returns.

Some months ago your correspondent revealed the arrival on Vancouver Island of Quick Wink.

Once a stakes star for the outlandish Kerr Stock Farm, Quick Wink was brought here by Robert Amey of Saanichton, ostensibly to snuggle up to lovesick mares.

Owner Amey hopefully intended the mating habits of his stud would produce thoroughbreds which would break holes in the wind.

Nothing was heard of Quick Wink until this week, the post from Saanichton being slower than usual these days.

"Bob Amey," said James Audain, the thoroughbred breeding squire, "ran into some luck—alright, but his barn burned to the ground. Then Quick Wink died."

But Amey's luck wasn't all sour. Not long ago Audain paid a "good price" for Bob Amey's equine retreat at 1570 McHattie Road.

Audain calls his place "Sunnylane Breeding Farm," has bought Ed LaChance, formerly with Victoria horseman Don Carley, to manage the operation.

Standing at Sunnylane are Supreme Verdict, brought over from England after an outstanding three-year-old campaign; Nan Item, a King of Tudors mare and her weanling filly foal by Silver Kumar, a stakes winner in England; and Fair Isabel, a Kentucky-bred mare.

Supreme Verdict's first crop (five colts and a filly) come to the races next year. If they run like their poppa did in England, there won't be any buttons left on the vest of J. Audain, the only Victorian on the board of directors of the B.C. Breeders' Society.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett's accumulated surplus of $64.9 million must have gone over big with the wildlife set. Recent figures on wildlife revenues and expenditures per square mile in the fiscal year 1963-64 show that only three provinces—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Newfoundland—spent less than B.C. And all three had considerably less revenue than Bennettland. . . . Here's the table:

Ontario	$5,598,080	$13.44
Nova Scotia	260,000	8.56
Quebec	2,899,449	5.77
Prince Edward Island	16,500	5.77
New Brunswick	593,675	4.04
Alberta	975,000	3.68
British Columbia	1,820,065	3.41
Newfoundland	300,000	2.39
Manitoba	926,000	2.34
Saskatchewan	846,500	1.46

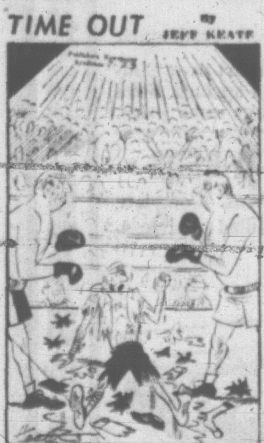

The premier said he was "humble and proud" of the province's affluence. . . . "Reflects the sound policies of this government," or something, he said. . . .

Down, boy, down.

Haida Chiefs may not be the best team in the Intercity Basketball League next season, but they'll sport the most hygienic haberdashery. . . . A city laundry firm has undertaken sponsorship and the cheque is in the till. . . . That's known as being taken to the cleaners the nice way. . . . Wouldn't Portland's Harry Glickman and Hal Laycoe have the last chuckle if Andy Hebertson don't suit up for Victoria Maple Leafs in September? . . . Funnier things have happened. . . . Hebertson will bypass the Victoria camp for the parent Leafs' exercise in calisthenics at Peterborough. . . . He fits the requirements of Toronto's noble geriatrician Punch Imlach and more. . . . Hebertson is 36, about the proper age for Imlach's "old folks" and he's a right-winger. . . . Recent trades left the Leafs with two legitimate right-riders—Ron Ellis and George Armstrong.

Minor hockey nabob Bob Reid reports that Rudy Pilous won't exactly be slumming next autumn when he takes over Hamilton Red Wings, a junior affiliate of Detroit. . . . The Hamiltonians, though only a Junior B club, had a budget of $123,000 last year. . . . Melville, Sask., a Junior A team, operated on a budget too. . . . All of $30,000. . . . The B.C. Lions were offered Jim Dillard, one of the best backs in the country, but backed off. . . . All Calgary wanted for Dillard was Amos Bullock or Lou Holland or Herb Capozzi's wallet. . . . All they were offered was Mack Burton. . . . Thanks, but no thanks. . . .

VANCOUVER (CP)—A little horsetrading Wednesday left several major organizations here backing a Pacific National Exhibition bid to build a new 16,000-seat arena on its grounds. In exchange, the PNE will back a downtown location for a trade and convention centre.

The decisions came at a meeting Wednesday between officials of the PNE, the Downtown Businessmen's Association and the Vancouver Board of Trade, and the Vancouver Visitors and Convention Bureau.

Mayor William Rathie and several aldermen also attended the meeting, which was closed to the press. A statement was issued at the meeting's end.

Ralph T. Cunningham, president of the Board of Trade, said the meeting agreed the building of an ice arena should be the first part of a two-phase program to obtain a National Hockey League franchise before the Sept. 6 deadline.

NHL officials have said they plan to expand the league, and Vancouver would be a natural city to expand into. If its hockey facilities were bettered.

This, They Hope, Could Be the Day!

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Today may be the day, it is whispered, that North Kamloops Stars and the Kelowna team finally finish that Okanagan Mainline Baseball League game.

The game they started two weeks ago, that is.

On its opening night, thunder and lightning closed things down.

Tuesday night, a power failure cancelled it at the bottom of the sixth with the Stars ahead 2-1.

It had started late—the Kelowna team arrived late, and

AT B.C. OPEN

Sharon Moves Into Semifinals

Don't be too surprised if Sharon Whittaker of Vancouver and Pat North of Hawaii meet in the women's singles finals of the B.C. Open tennis tournament.

On opposite sides of the draw, the pair advanced to the semis Wednesday at the Racquet Club.

Formerly of Victoria, Miss Whittaker, playing impressively, turned back Julie Kaspari of Portland, 6-3, 6-3. The top-seeded Miss North defeated Julie James of San Mateo, Cal., 6-4, 6-1.

In men's singles, Tony Bardsley of Vancouver added David Ranny of Garden Grove, Cal., to his victims, 8-6, 6-4. Earlier Bardsley had eliminated fourth-seeded Jim Watson of San Francisco.

Two upsets marked the day's play.

The second-seeded men's doubles pair of Ed Grubb, Santa Monica, and Tom Karp, Los Angeles, went down 6-4, 7-9, 7-5 to Jack Neer of Portland and Erick Baer of San Diego. Also in the semis with the winners were the fourth-seeded tandem of Butch Krikorian, San Jose, and Joe Woolfson, Hayward, Cal., 6-4, 6-1 winners over John

Hemming Fans Greaves' Hopes

Greaves looks like money in the Senior Amateur Baseball League' amateur today with George Hemming as the principal contributor.

Hemming struck out 21 Wednesday at Royal Athletic Park as Greaves blanked IAA 4-0.

He gave up six hits, never more than one in an inning, and aborted every potential rally with his blazing fastball.

The result left Greaves needing only one victory and a loss by second-place Transports to give them a tie for the league championship. Greaves have three games to play, Transports one.

WINDUP SUNDAY

Greaves meet Independents Saturday; wind up regular play with a doubleheader Sunday at Chemainus.

Playoffs start Aug. 10.

Hemming's batterymate Bob Lumley drove in Greaves' first two runs with a third-inning single. A fielder's choice and a single by Bob Moysey accounted for the other runs.

Playoff Prospects Pleasing to Marsh

Short-Handed Vancouver Squad Proves Too Much for Futile Irish

Vancouver 12, Shamrocks 4
By ERNIE FEDORUK

Vancouver lacrosse coach Bobby Marsh says he is going "to forget all about Victoria Shamrocks and look forward to what could be the greatest playoff series in Inter-City League history."

Physically speaking, Marsh is no giant. But he'll get into very few arguments because even the big guys today suspect wee Robert may be right.

A "half" Vancouver team humiliated the Shamrocks 12-4 at Memorial Arena on a muggy Wednesday evening and virtually ended Victoria's 1965 lacrosse season.

Only a slim mathematical chance remains for the Shamrocks to squeeze into three-team playoffs. Judging from Wednesday's performance, Shamrocks' hopes are as bright as a promise of stock market rise after a Lyndon B. Johnson press conference.

Precisely, slim, and none.

MAGIC NUMBER ONE

Any combination of another Victoria defeat or a Coquitlam Adanac victory will officially eliminate the Shamrocks, leaving the post-season stage to the league's three mainland clubs.

The unhappy Irish hit a new low in futility Wednesday. They banged it on the noggin after only 25 seconds of play. That's how long it took Vancouver's Bill Robinson to score the first goal of the game, and the Rocks were never serious after that.

Running hard and shooting with infinite accuracy, Vancouver pulled off a victory without the services of five players who could make the grade on any body's starting lineup.

WORK CALLS

Absent were Sid Warick, Norm Usselman, Bob Babcock, Ron Hemmerling and Gary Stevens. All five were unable to take time off from work.

Ron Jay, favoring an ankle sprain, and rookie Nirmal Dillon, out with a back injury, were missing from the Victoria lineup.

Marsh shuffled his goalies, gave his reserves plenty of work, and still came out smelling roses. On this particular night, all he needed was Robinson, Gordie Fredrickson and Wayne Pecknold.

The lightly-heralded but talented Robinson scored three goals in the first 10 minutes of action, then tacked on a pair of assists for a five-point night.

FOUR FOR PECKNOLD

Pecknold scored four goals within a span of eight minutes, 15 seconds, and the pesky Fredrickson enjoyed a four-point outing with two goals and as many assists.

Only Larry Biggs (2), Ted Lieblich and Jack Showers mustered goals for Victoria, and that respectable sum of four didn't even match Vancouver's first-quarter output.

The Victoria fans rarely oozed enthusiasm about the officiating (Shamrocks drew seven minors to three by Vancouver) or the work of goalies Skip Chapman and Alf Shuker.

But the fact remains, four goals will never win many lacrosse games.

It was, like coach Jim McNeill said at his press conference: "Hard enough to watch, let alone coach. . . ."

DOW DOES IT!

Defence Sparks Optimists Again

KELOWNA—Victoria Evening Optimist all-stars have an unassisted record in the B.C. Baseball tournament here today, thanks to Jim Dow.

Dow was the man of the hour Wednesday as Optimists edged past Trail 6-4.

His great running catch in the seventh inning cut off two potential Trail runs. In addition, he drove in three runs with a double in the third inning and added another marker with a single in the sixth.

Dow got great support from Jim Ferrie who had two hits and turned in a fine defensive game.

Optimists face their toughest task tonight when they play Vancouver. Inter-Community, the only other team in the tourney, with a perfect 2-0 win-loss record, Vancouver's old past New Westminster 5-3 Wednesday.

If Optimists win they will get a bye until Saturday. Kelowna and New Westminster meet today to eliminate one team and Trail and North Vancouver, both 1-1, clash Friday.

Trail... 100 000 0-0 4 6
Optimists... 200 001 0-4 4 6
Dennis Merlo, Merv Kennedy (3) and Paul Perry, Harold Cliff and Jerry Allen.

One umpire was recruited from a nearby softball diamond, and another out of the stands.

Just as things were looking bright, a brilliant flash in the transformer killed the lights.

The remaining three innings will be played tonight, lightning and transformers willing, and a seven-inning game will follow—everybody hopes.

Post Office Needs Another 'Mr. Clean' at Helm

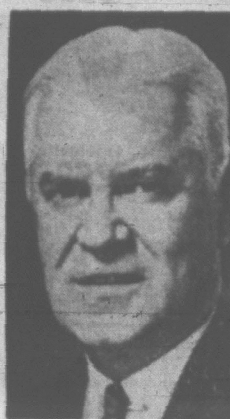

By JOYCE FAIRBAIN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—In spite of the obvious discomfort of a postal strike, there are far-reaching political implications in the present situation.

It will undoubtedly increase the pressure for proper collective bargaining within the civil service and, also, underline the necessity of having a strong minister to handle such a widespread department as the Post Office.

Activities of the Post Office stretch into every corner of Canadian life and it ranks third in spending of all government departments.

There have been behind-the-

scenes complaints for years that the Post Office is often left almost to run itself, that it is an obvious haven for political patronage, and that governments often regard it as a junior post and place their best ministerial talent elsewhere.

The Pearson government got off to a shaky start in the Post Office with the appointment of veteran Montreal member Axelus Denis as postmaster general.

'PATRONAGE LIST'
Before long, controversy erupted in the House of Commons when the Conservative opposition got their hands on Denis' "patronage lists" containing names of Liberal sympathizers who might be used for Post Office work around the country.

After considerable hammering in the Commons, the prime minister elevated Denis to the Senate and brought in then forestry minister John Nicholson to straighten things out.

In the past two years, Nicholson has gained the title of "Mr. Clean" in political circles. He is a conscientious, determined man who has yet to get into any real difficulty in government. On the occasions when he has been in a tight spot, he has acted quickly to dispel the problem.

One of Nicholson's first steps was to get rid of the Denis lists. During his tenure in the department, certain senior civil servants said privately, that for the first time in years, their department was getting some attention. Not only was Nicholson trying to learn as much about Post Office operations as possible, but he was close to the prime minister and could argue a good case for the department's needs in cabinet.

However, trouble began to brew in the immigration department and its minister, Rene Tremblay, became involved in controversy over furniture deals. Also, his former executive assistant, Raymond Denis, was deeply involved in events which led to the Dorion inquiry, and his activities are now the subject of charges before the courts.

TREMBLAY
... poor health

So last February, the prime minister moved Nicholson out of Post Office and assigned him to try another clean-up job in immigration.

Tremblay was moved into the Post Office. He was also under considerable personal pressures in the Commons and the publicity surrounding the Dorion inquiry finally took its toll.

He fell ill with a lung ailment and was confined to hospital for several weeks. When he finally returned to the Commons he was very weak and has not been in good health since.

There was speculation that because of these circumstances, and the fact that he was totally absolved of any blame in the Dorion report, he would be appointed to the Senate where he would be under less strain.

However, the prime minister did not move him for reasons best known to them both.

During the postal strike negotiations of the past few days, it has been Revenue Minister Edgar Benson who has carried the main load for the government, not Tremblay.

There are several other hotly political problems facing the government at the moment.

If the government meets their demand for a $660 raise, there is good reason to believe that many thousands of other civil servants in other departments will begin agitating for similar consideration.

If some satisfactory compromise is not worked out there is the ultimate alternative of calling parliament to pass legislation forcing postal workers back on the job.

DENIS

And with Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker criticizing the government's handling of the postal problem, as well as promising to demand the re-establishment of the Dorion inquiry as soon as parliament meets, there is ground for government reluctance to recall the House until the end of September.

WALL'S NOT TALL but it is effective in stopping refugees from East Germany getting into the foreground section which is part of West Berlin.

ALSO MORE EFFECTIVE

'More Pleasant' Berlin Wall Seen

BERLIN (AP)—Refugee soldiers say East Germany's Communist regime is planning a sunken wall around West Berlin that will be less noticeable and more effective.

Such a barrier already is taking shape along the frontier between West Berlin's Zehlendorf district and East Germany.

"We have no official confirmation of the plan," said Capt. Heinz Hackbarth of the West Berlin police during a tour of the border Wednesday.

"But according to information we have received from refugee East German soldiers, the Communist regime plans to encircle West Berlin completely with its 'modern border' by 1970.

"According to what the refugee soldiers have told us, the idea is to remove all barbed wire and the present wall from around West Berlin.

Pointing to a section of the "modern border" already built along the Zehlendorf frontier, Hackbarth explained:

"They will put up an ordinary wire fence where the barbed wire—perhaps the wall—now stand. In the middle of a cleared strip 500 yards wide, they will dig a broad trench, and inside it on the side toward West Berlin will be a cement wall nine feet high and almost vertical.

"No vehicle, including a tank, will be able to get up that wall and no one will be able to climb it without help.

"On the eastern side of the trench and its sunken wall will be a road for their motorized patrols. Foot patrols and dogs will patrol in the trench.

"Beyond the road will be a second wire fence. The whole strip will have a normal appearance, camouflaged through design and landscaping."

Family Uses High-Wire Routine In Daring Berlin Wall Crossing

BERLIN (UPI)—An East German family of three early today made a daring escape by rope over the wall from the headquarters of the East German government.

A man, his wife and nine-year-old son dangled high over the wall and went hand over hand along the rope for 120 yards until they landed in the American sector.

The escape was all the more dramatic because it was made from the headquarters building of the East German Government, which faces the wall but is 60 feet away from it.

The building, the "House of the Ministries" on Wilhelm Strasse, is the former Nazi air ministry of Hermann Goering.

A West Berlin spokesman said the family hid out in a bathroom of the building and made its escape under cover of darkness. The escape took three hours to complete and ended at 2 a.m.

NYLON ROPE

The 33-year-old man fastened a nylon rope to a flagpole on the roof of the 60-foot high building and hurled the other end over the wall.

It was caught by West Berliners who tied the end to the wreck of a truck 120 yards away near the U.S. Army's Checkpoint Charlie.

First the boy went hand over hand along the rope from the roof of the truck parked in an empty lot, eyewitnesses reported. Then the 32-year-old woman and her husband followed.

All wore leather gloves to protect their hands. On their arrival in West Berlin they were taken to the Urban Hospital for examination.

The carefully-planned escape began at 11 p.m. after border guards ended a tour of the wall at that point.

BRIDGE RESULTS

Winners of the junior duplicate bridge club's game played recently at Broughton Club rooms were: N/S: 1. Denise and Fraser McCall; 2. Isabel Carr and Ann Roylance; 3. Don Smith and Bill Dash; 4. Pete Nixon and Bryan Baxter; 5. Peter Chau and Allen Sourkes.

E/W: 1. Wayne Carson and Bruce Parker; 2. Jean and Homer Kolb; 3. Frances Watts and Freda Wade; 4. Una Orme and Judy Langstaff; 5. Ed and Babs Harris.

IN SAFE THEFT

Judge Acquits Man; Rejects Confession

A Victoria man charged with the July 6 break-in and theft from Blue Bird Cabs was acquitted in magistrate's court Wednesday.

Dale Ashton of the Belmont Auto Court testified earlier he was beaten by police into falsely confessing. The man's claim was rejected by Magistrate William Ostler, but he also rejected the 'confession.'

Postal Bomb Scare

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa's main post office building was evacuated for more than an hour Wednesday while police searched it in response to an anonymous bomb threat. They found nothing in the building to support the telephone tip that a bomb had been placed inside.

Giving judgment, Magistrate Ostler noted that a prosecution witness had testified Friday that he had seen Ashton in a beer parlor during the time the crime was committed. And another witness, already convicted of the crime, testified Ashton "had nothing to do with it."

Two men are now serving jail terms for the break-in and theft of a safe from the taxi company.

They are Ernest Falconer, sentenced to two years, and Clifford Piper, sentenced to six months.

The case against Ashton was a highly suspicious one, said Magistrate Ostler, but considering the evidence of the two witnesses there was a reasonable doubt in his mind and he was acquitting him.

Act Forces Some Groups To Perjury

The Canadian Citizenship Act makes no provision for Mohammedans or Buddhists—they are compelled to take the oath of allegiance to Canada on the Christian Bible.

An oath on the Mohammedan bible, the Koran, is not recognized.

"This is an absurd situation," said a Victoria lawyer. "It means that men of faith and goodwill are virtually obliged to commit perjury when taking the oath."

"The law should be changed and the sooner the better."

In Paris Thursday, Canada's citizenship and immigration minister, J. R. Nicholson, said he was "disappointed but not disturbed to learn that Judge Montague Drake had denied Canadian citizenship to a Dutch couple because they said they would not take an oath on the Bible."

REPORT ASKED

"I have asked for a report on the matter," Mr. Nicholson told Reuters' news agency. "I don't see how a county court could take such a decision against the decision of a court two steps higher up."

Mr. Nicholson was referring to the Ontario Court of Appeal which reversed the decision of a lower court refusing citizenship to another Dutch couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Vanderpool of Victoria were refused citizenship in Victoria County Court last Friday. Judge Drake said he was reluctant to do this, but was bound "by a ridiculous act."

"All other acts, even the oath of allegiance act, provide for the taking of the affirmation. But the Citizenship Act specifically calls for the oath 'So help me God.'"

Judge Drake declined comment on the statement in Paris by citizenship minister Nicholson, but said he stood by his ruling that the act specifies the oath must be taken on the Bible.

One Victoria lawyer said Mr. Nicholson should take immediate steps to have the law amended.

"He could introduce such an amendment at the next session. If he doesn't, the act will become a farce. Every time it is enforced it will be appealed and reversed, as happened in Ontario."

Invent 3-D Radar

LONDON (Reuters)—A three-dimensional radar system for controlling dense air traffic has been invented by British scientists. It was reported Wednesday. The system shows all airplanes in color as spots of light moving in a box projected on a three-dimensional radar screen.

ON DEATH ROW

Mail Friendship Denied to Negro

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)

A federal judge ruled Wednesday that the state prison can legally prohibit correspondence between a Negro on death row and a white Swedish housewife—as long as race isn't involved.

Edgar Labat, 41, who has been on death row a record 12 years, had asked a preliminary injunction to let him continue his letter exchange with Mrs. Solveig Johansson, 39, of Stockholm.

"If the state has the right to deprive him of his very life through execution for commission of a capital offence," U.S. District Judge E. Gordon West ruled, "then certainly it has the right, as part of the ultimate punishment, to deprive him of other privileges along the way to final reckoning—just as long as such deprivations are imposed according to law and on a non-discriminatory basis."

Labat and Clifton Foret, another New Orleans Negro, were sentenced to die in 1953 after they were convicted of the rape of a white woman. Appeals and nine stays of execution have kept them alive at the Angola prison, some 30 miles north of here.

In January, 1964, the prison cut off a three-year correspondence between Labat and Mrs. Johansson.

APPLIES TO MAIL

The prison at first said its rules did not permit correspondence between different races. Later it said that was an error but that a state law limiting "access" to condemned prisoners to immediate family, lawyer, doctor and chaplain also applied to mail.

At the same time, the prison stopped mail from nearly 100 persons who had been writing to some 25 other death-row prisoners. Most of these people were friends of the condemned.

Last December, Labat had his lawyer seek a court order to allow the correspondence to resume, claiming it deprived Labat and the other death-row prisoners of their right to free speech and the privileges of other convicts not on death row.

Arthur Mayse

The mailman has always been a Very Important Person at our house, and when he again trudges into our drive with bulging bag, we will see him in the light of a midsummer Santa Claus.

On Wednesday, he passed us by, and perhaps he will today. But when he does come down, we tell each other he will have something nice for us... an unexpected cheque, maybe, or an invitation worth gussying up for, or a letter beginning, "Your piece in last night's paper was absolutely stupendous."

So much for daydreams! Now, here's what will really happen.

The mailman will come, disgorge, and depart, and three minutes later, we'll be almost wishing he'd stayed on strike.

We will find no cheques or invitations in our porch container, although there may be a card-urging us to inspect high-priced transportation in a downtown car palace.

A letter will raise our hopes until we open it.

"Sir," it will begin, "after that article you wrote in that newspaper, the fires of hell are reaching for you! You better repent—fast."

The rest will be a three-page theological ramble in which the measurements of the Great Pyramid will figure prominently.

We can also anticipate some bills, a couple of slightly stale magazines, and a shoal of direct-mail advertising. This will no doubt include a pitch from at least one magazine to which we don't subscribe.

The only break we'll get, in fact, will be a coupon good for a nickel on a giant economy size box of detergent.

I'm not grumbling, mind, just reporting; and I expect the same mailman who torpedoes our wishful thinking will bring relief to many a worried pensioner.

Anyway, in the ups and downs of the busy years, we have become hardened to the lottery over which the man with the letter bag presides six days a week.

Once an envelope with a Los Angeles postmark yielded a particularly clever version of the "Spanish prisoner" racket which has been circling the globe for all of a century.

Again, the message was from a girl who identified herself only as a nurse in a New York hospital. She hated herself even more than she did her patients, and announced that her next act would be to end it all in a dive from a window ledge.

Hoax or true statement of intent? Since the letter wasn't signed or the hospital named, I'll never know.

To a journeyman writer, mail-time is the high point of the day. If he happens to be a free lance, it can bring happiness or despair.

A few lines from a publisher's or literary agent's office may turn a winter's hard work into a pile of used paper, or assure him that his living is made for a year or more.

Looking back on 1965, I would say that one possibility is as bad as the other: writers, as a breed, work only when necessity demands. When not actively producing, they are undeniably the laziest people on earth.

We're on city mail in Gordon Head now. Not to hurt anyone's feelings, but I often wish we weren't.

It used to be that we had, not a man, but a mail lady. She operated by car, and as the grind of stop-go driving did its work on her vehicle's innards, her approach was signalled for an ever-increasing distance.

She veered in with a fine din, stopped a precise arm's reach from our galvanized box on its post, and flipped up the lid.

Since the hinge went un-oiled from year to year, it squealed splendidly at a precise 8:45 a.m.

Our mail arrives in comparative silence now, several hours later than it did in the days of rural delivery... a circumstance that convinces us progress isn't all it's cracked up to be.

MOTHER, WAS IT WORTH IT?

Twenty months learning how to dive... and all for this. Cold reception was in store today for Lieutenant Harvey Waddell, 26, when he returned to the submarine HMCS Grilse after passing final examinations. Crew members took up action stations and "Operation Dunk" was under way. Lt. Waddell was given five minutes to change into old uniform, then up the nearest hatch for the big heave. To the cry of "dive, dive, dive," he hit the cold briny of HMC Dockyard. A shivering, bedraggled, but grinning lieutenant was then officially allowed to join the ship's company. Lt. Waddell, from Nova Scotia, graduated from the RCN's Venture training plan at Esquimalt in 1958. After serving aboard escort destroyers he did six months submarine training followed by 14 months aboard the Grilse.

$300 Fine And Jail Was Close

A young man with a confusing case of driver's licence suspensions was fined $300 today in city magistrate's court.

Kenneth E. Rowe, 20, of HMCS Yukon, pleaded guilty to driving without insurance and driving while under suspension.

The charge arose out of an accident when he was in collision with another vehicle May 27 at Bay and Douglas.

He told police his suspension had expired May 9, according to a notice he had from the motor vehicle branch.

But it was only for his unsatisfactory driving record. A second suspension for failing to prove financial responsibility was still in effect.

His defence counsel said Rowe was under the impression he could drive again when the motor vehicle branch informed him his first suspension expired.

Because of the confusion in the case Magistrate William Oester said he would only impose a fine rather than a prison sentence.

ONE OF TWO PARACHUTISTS

from B.C. to compete in the Canadian National Parachuting Championships in September in Cobden, Ont., is Brian Bowman, 21, of Victoria. Four-year veteran skydiver, Brian has logged 250 jumps. He placed 11th overall in the 1964 national trials. Six accuracy jumps from 3,300 feet, aiming for six-inch disc in 15-foot circle and three-style jumps from 6,600 feet will count for points. Brian believes he has a good chance to make the national team which will compete in July next year in East Germany for world title. Other B.C. entry is Peter Woolgar, Vancouver.

TWO, THREE OR FOUR, OR

A man who didn't seem to know how much alcohol he had consumed was fined $300 and had his licence suspended today in city court when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

William Patrick O'Neill, 2911 Shakespeare, was stopped by police July 10 on Government St. when his speed between Bay and Pembroke was estimated at 40 mph.

He first told police he had "two or three beers." Later he admitted to "three or four," police said.

When interviewed at the city police station he said he had "four or five beers plus a couple of drops of rum."

'Greatest Pedestrian' Catholic Priest Loved by All Indians

Famed for his work among the Indians of Vancouver Island, Monsignor John Leo Bradley will be honored at the 50th anniversary of his priesthood next Monday.

He was ordained priest at Fribourg, Switzerland, in 1915 and came to Victoria the following year. Since 1935 he has tramped hundreds of miles around Vancouver Island visiting Indian reserves.

"Father Bradley is our greatest pedestrian," said a spokesman at St. Andrew's Cathedral. "He wears thick boots and he talks everywhere; but when he wants to get somewhere in a hurry he goes by train, bus or car."

A reception to be given in his honor at St. Joseph's Church Hall, West Burnside, Monday at 8 p.m. will be attended by Chief Phil Paul of the Tsartlip Band, Chief Ed Underwood of the East Saanich Band and members of other reserves.

"Father Bradley is most highly thought of among the Indians of this Island," Chief Paul said today.

Still very active, Monsignor Bradley will be 80 on Sept. 14. He resides at St. Andrew's Cathedral but is seldom home.

"He is always on the road to somewhere," the spokesman said.

NOSE-COUNTING EXPERTS ALL SAY—

'65 Could Be Tourism's Record Year Here

Victoria could be heading for its biggest tourist year since the Seattle World Fair.

Visitor's Bureau officials report all phases of business booming as July moves into the home stretch.

Bus lines and guided tour operators say their bookings are well ahead of last year and, if the weather holds, are looking forward to their biggest-ever year since 1962 when the city was swamped with World Fair overflow tourists.

Hotels and motels tell the same story.

"Apart from 1962 which will be a tough year to beat, 1965 could be a record year," says Michael Heppell, director of the Visitor's Bureau.

"It will be well on towards the end of the year before any accurate count can be made, when all the transportation companies tally their totals, but all indications are that we are well on the way to an excellent year."

Mr. Heppell said that while the number of tourists would naturally be down from the record 1962 year those coming appeared to be staying longer.

"In 1962 we had two boats a day from Seattle but many of the travellers just stayed the day in the city returning the same evening," he said.

"This year they appear to be staying for a day or two before heading back which means of course that they spend more."

John Cunningham, chairman of the Retail Merchants Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, agrees that business is good.

Last-Minute Flurry In Centennial Vote

Committee Chooses Tonight

Last-minute interest in a Greater Victoria centennial project today brought a flood of popular opinion from five main sources including ballots and petitions.

A sports stadium complex was a walkaway choice in the Times popular poll ballot conducted in co-operation with Greater Victoria centennial committee on projects.

It was outpaced by petitions favoring Gorge waterway development, as a result of an 11th-hour organized movement by volunteer canvassers who gathered 1,474 signatures. An additional 18 signatures appeared on a private letter favoring the Gorge.

Gorge development was not included on the original Times ballot, but when the committee decided to reconsider it as a possibility, the Gorge was placed on the list for a day before the mail strike interfered.

Write-in ballots were accepted after that.

TIMES BALLOT

The stadium complex drew 603 votes on the Times ballot, 176 on a ballot organized by Victoria Amateur Baseball Association, and 73 on voting organized by volunteers interested in Gorge waterway development.

Centennial projects chairman Bruce Humber said the committee was interested only in the community-wide expression of opinion by the ballot offering multiple choices.

The committee meets tonight to make a recommendation to the centennial committee as a joint project for the capital.

Individual local councils will have to approve the suggestion before it can be adopted.

Besides the 603 stadium votes the Times ballot standings were:

Outdoor saltwater pool, 281; Planetarium, 107; Gorge waterway, 77; Glass-domed pavilion, 62; Standings according to the Gorge volunteers' ballot: Gorge waterway, 359; Stadium 73; Outdoor pool, 68; Planetarium, 12; Glass-domed pavilion, 3. There was one additional vote for the saltwater pool as a result of the ballot circulated by the baseball association.

Crash Kills Duncan Man

Duncan truck driver Robert Annear died when his truck plunged out of control near Port Alice on Vancouver Island's west coast.

News of his death reached his wife at their Royal Road, Duncan, home today.

First reports said her husband was killed Wednesday but few other details were released.

Mr. Annear was in his early thirties and is the father of five children, aged two to 10.

He was working for Rayonier Ltd., who have large forest holdings on northern Vancouver Island.

The hazard has been climbing steadily everywhere for the past few days after a welcome respite of damp and cloudy weather ended a lengthy hot spell that sent fire fighting costs soaring 10 times higher than last year's low expenditures.

"What's making it worse this time is that we're not getting much dew to provide some overnight recovery as we did in the past."

Careless Drivers

In city police court today: Jan Ponse, 1392 Rockland, made left turn July 13 at Cook and Fort at too great a speed, almost losing control, fined $45.

John Patrick Clark, 270 Meadowbrook, collision July 13 at Menzies and Superior after going through a stop sign, fined $45.

SMILES OF RELIEF after long wait indicated results of grade 12 exams for these Victoria High School students. Marks were detained because of postal strike, but officials announced Wednesday that results could be obtained by phoning or visiting high schools. Principals said today that phones had been ringing relentlessly since 9 a.m. Congratulating grade 12 students, June Pritchard (left), 628 Dallas, and Lily Kwan, 991 Londonderry, is university student Vicky Sargent (back). Teacher Joe Andrews shows that teachers also like handing out good marks.

Victoria Woods Said Explosive

The forest fire situation is heating up rapidly across the province again and has become "potentially explosive" around Victoria, a B.C. Forest Service spokesman warned today.

"We have a total of 242 fires burning right now which is quite a lot and they're engaging some 793 men, the largest number so far this season," he said. More than 40 aircraft of all types and several tractors also are in operation.

There were 87 new fires, most of them in the Terrace area, reported overnight. A large number were caused by lightning strikes.

The closest fire to Victoria was a spot-size blaze caused by a careless smoker near Duncan but it was put out this morning.

EXTREME HAZARD

"The hazard all around Victoria is really extreme—it's no exaggeration to say it's potentially explosive—and we're desperately hoping that parents will warn their children and campers will take full care," the official said.

"If a blaze starts anywhere on the Saanich Peninsula or the Goldstream-Langford area, it could get away on us very easily because of the present conditions, and there are livestock and people's homes at stake."

Cleaning Gas Explosion Burns Woman

Explosion of a can of naphtha gas used for cleaning purposes sent a mother of three to hospital with burns to both arms this morning.

Mrs. Lois Epp, Thetis Lake Trailer Park, was thought to be cleaning clothes in her trailer just after 10 a.m. when the five-gallon can exploded.

She was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital by neighbors at the Trailer Park.

GOOD CONDITION

Hospital officials said she was in good condition at noon today.

Two View Royal fire trucks and an ambulance answered a call turned in by Trailer Park owner, Mrs. J. Jamieson.

Firemen extinguished the blaze. Damage to the interior of the trailer was negligible.

Mrs. Epp, a widow, has lived at the Trailer Park since last November. Neighbors are taking care of her children.

Scandinavian Drapes Come to the Rescue

By PENNY SAVER

Well, it finally happened. For years I've been expecting the living room drapes to "give up the ghost" and last night they did. After years of washing and wearing and pulling, they finally ripped as I tried to draw them—two great rents from floor to ceiling that were impossible to repair. (It didn't really bother me that much—they didn't match some new pieces of furniture I recently bought, and I've been trying to think of some excuse to get some new drapes for months anyway.)

I've discovered some perfect window-covers which will go with any type of furniture imaginable. Imported directly from Scandinavia, they are made of a new type of material which is entirely synthetic but looks like top-quality wool.

Loosely-woven, these materials are made to last through years of wear and you can beat them; crush them—do almost anything to them—they are virtually uncrushable, and wear and wear.

Washing is easy—just rinse them out and they drip-dry—without losing their shape. These are completely colorfast and are wonderful over a big picture window to protect furniture colors—they are loose enough to see through from the inside and yet impossible to see through from the outside. Glare is reduced to nothing. A 57-inch-wide yard of this is $4.95, and it's $5.75 for a tighter-weave drape.

For bedroom curtains, bedspreads, for kitchen—or living room too, here are some more colorful, color-fast ideas. Ranging in price from $4.95 to $8.95 a yard are sturdy and lovely cotton blends for drapes of award-winning design.

I also discovered the most beautiful lamp which would be perfect to give a living room a soft subdued glow for those evenings at home spent just relaxing. These are of a washable material, shaped, believe it or not, like a high-rise apartment building. But they are beautiful. The glare from the bulb is diffused and the light is softly filtered through slits in the side of the lamp. This is suspended from the ceiling. Price is $8.

Don't forget, give Penny a call at 382-3131 if you want to know where to shop.

THE BETTER HALF

"Trip the Light, Fantastic."

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

With Good Food Available, Many of Us Still Eat Poorly

We live in a country with an abundance of food all year long, but many still do not get all the nutrients essential to best health. This is partly due to the rush of life when we too often grab a bite. Teen-agers are notoriously one of the worst-nourished age groups. They are apt to eat a skimpy breakfast, or none at all, and then snack on soft drinks, hamburgers and candy bars.

Often the woman in the home is not well nourished. She may sit down to toast and coffee after the family leaves for the day and pick up a little something from the refrigerator at noon. Single men and women are likely to be poorly nourished because they will not prepare adequate meals for one person. Older people often have little appetite, or suffer from indigestion or have difficulty eating many foods because of loss of teeth.

Probably the most usual fault with the average diet is too much fat and carbohydrates and an insufficient intake of vitamins and minerals. It has been well established that if a person eats a diet which provides all of the key foods regularly, he or she will have all of the vitamins needed.

However, many authorities believe in vitamin supplements, especially in special instances. They may be helpful in times of stress. When the amount of food is curtailed for a loss of weight these may be advisable. They may be needed when recovering from an illness, during pregnancy or the nursing period.

Others believe that vitamin supplements are good preventive measures at any time. There is a certain loss in storage and cooking and people differ in their individual needs. Certainly vitamin supplements are not supposed to take the place of a good diet, but should only be taken to supplement it.

You should consult your doctor about what kind and how much, especially if you are in one of the classifications I mentioned earlier in this column.

NURSE SHORTAGE CAUSES CLOSURE

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 60 beds at Montreal Children's Hospital have been closed down for lack of staff. Some nurses like to take long summer holidays, says director Roselyn Smith, but many are themselves having babies.

SURPRISE PARTY

'Guys and Gals' Shower Held In Hawaiian Style

A "guys and gals" shower, arranged to honor and surprise bride-elect Miss May Wong and her fiancé, Edward G. Chow, was recently held in the Pearce Crescent home of Mr. and Mrs. Hoy Yip.

Decorations were in the Hawaiian theme, complete with palm trees, grass shack and a five-foot mask of a blinking Hawaiian sun god. A carnation lei was presented to the bride-elect and her fiancé received one of vegetables.

Hawaiian refreshments were served and the Hula was danced to Hawaiian music.

GREAT-GRANDFATHER'S DIARY

Selects Bermuda Cove As Unusual Study Site

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP)—A boat in a quiet Bermuda cove sounds like a strange place to read your great-grandfather's diary, but for Annette Wolff, it's the ideal spot.

For six months of the year, that is. During the summer she's in Montreal, but she still doesn't get away from boats—she works for a steamship company.

And her hobby, the World Ship Society, draws her again to the port.

"I've been chased by so many harbor police that they've finally given up on me," she said in an interview here. "I've always been interested in ships."

But why is she reading her great-grandfather's diary? She says it contains a wealth of information about the early days in Quebec City and she wants to see it published.

Love for the sea was a family inheritance. Her great-grandfather, Abraham Joseph, was a shipping agent. "I am trying to find out if he was the first Canadian agent in Quebec," Miss Wolff said.

"Great-grandfather's diaries were scattered in England and Canada—he had 14 children—and it took a long time to accumulate them."

COVER 32-YEAR SPAN

Miss Wolff now is engaged in indexing the diaries. Entries in the volumes discovered thus far run from 1834 to 1866.

Miss Wolff would like to have something ready for publication by 1967 and has the assurance the Quebec department of cultural affairs will finance translation of the work into French. Plans for the original publication in English have not been completed, but Miss Wolff has the strong support of Dr. W. K. Lamb, the Dominion archivist.

She recalled several anecdotes related in the diary, involving such figures as Louis-Joseph Papineau, leader of the 1837 rebellion in Quebec for responsible government, and John Molson, an early Canadian brewer and shipping magnate.

"Great-grandfather and Lord Durham's secretary were friendly and lived in the same boarding house in Quebec City," she said. Lord Durham was sent by the British government to investigate and report on the situation in Canada following the 1837 rebellion.

Miss Wolff said her great-grandfather, a member of the city council, was involved in nearly all phases of the life of the community. His writings include comments on government and approaching Confederation ("Hurrah, the provinces will be united!"), clothing, trade and transportation and so on.

MONTREAL COLD

Asked why she picked Bermuda as her research base, Miss Wolff replied:

"To get away from the cold, and besides I know some people there. I picked Montreal for the rest of the year because I have three sisters here and, of course, because it's a port."

A native of Quebec City, she has also lived in Ottawa and London, England. A formidable sailor, who has travelled almost entirely on freighters, Miss Wolff often has been the only passenger to turn up for breakfast during rough weather.

An Eastern Canadian representative for the World Ship Society, she receives inquiries "from all over the world for information on ships passing through the St. Lawrence Seaway" and spends countless hours doing research.

PRODUCED PICTURE

Recently a man in Toronto asked her for a picture of the ship on which he came to Canada in 1906. "It took me six months to locate one, but it was worth it because he was so pleased," she said.

Miss Wolff has written articles and given lectures to various groups in Montreal and in Bermuda on the information she has acquired through her work with the World Ship Society and her work on the diaries.

In 1961 she was invited to England by the British Historical Society to give a paper on her great-grandfather. She has also compiled several marine histories.

DEAR ABBY

He's Not Moved!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 36 and this girl I have been going with for three years is 26. Neither one of us has ever been married. She has been bugging me to marry her for the past two years, but I just can't seem to get fired up about it. I have been putting off my decision to give it more thought, but I can't make up my mind. We both work, so there is no financial problems. There isn't any religious problem, either. We get along okay and don't disagree on anything really important. She's a nice person, an efficient housekeeper and she's very practical. I don't think I love her, but she keeps telling me that she loves me so I say I love her, too, so as not to hurt her feelings. I like my freedom, but if I don't see her I never think of looking for another girl. Should I marry her or not? I just wish someone would help me make up my mind.

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: When in doubt, do nothing. You don't seem able to get very "fired up" about much of anything. Perhaps you don't have the capacity for it, but marriage requires more enthusiasm than you display.

DEAR ABBY: I was dancing with my girl friend at a public dance hall and, when we swung out, a man cut in and the next thing I knew she was gone, and I was dancing with a man. I finished the dance with him and he took me back to my table and thanked me. My boy friend was furious! He said I had no business dancing with a strange man just because he cut in on me. Was I right in finishing the dance with the man or should I have walked off the floor and left him standing there? He was a perfect gentleman all the time we were dancing. My boy friend doesn't dance fast numbers. That's why I was dancing with my girl friend.

ANGIE

DEAR ANGIE: When two women dance together at a public dance hall, it is an implied invitation for a man to cut in, so don't blame the man. To have walked off the floor and left him standing there would have been rude. And if your boy friend didn't want you dancing with strangers, he should have put his foot down when you wanted to dance with another girl publicly.

DEAR ABBY: I am nearing 60 and have an important decision to make. My wife died four years ago and for the past year I have been keeping steady company with a widow. Everyone tells me I would be lucky to get this woman. When we started to get "serious," she said she wanted an "official" engagement with a diamond ring. (She is 55 and has grand-children.)

I asked her what kind of diamond she had in mind and she asked me what I did with the ring my first wife wore for years. I told her I had given it to my married daughter, which I had. Then she said she wouldn't accept anything smaller than two carats, and it had to be perfect! Frankly, I hadn't planned on buying her any kind of a diamond because she already has a nice one from her first husband. She is good company and a fine-looking woman and we enjoy each other's company. But all this talk about diamonds has got me ready to back off. What do you think?

CHANGE OF HEART

DEAR CHANGE: Back off! CONFIDENTIAL to ANONYMOUS: Go to your PUBLIC HEALTH DEPARTMENT. They will arrange for an examination at no cost to you. If your suspicions are correct (and I would guess they are), the disease is contagious. The treatment is painless and uncomplicated. I urge you to go today.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice:

What should a person do who is the same as an alcoholic when it comes to buying material? I can't go near a store that sells material without buying some; and if there is a sale, I'm really sunk because I can't resist a bargain.

When I'm ready to make something, the material I have isn't the right color, or there isn't enough and I go out and buy more. I've even gone so far as to hide the material from my husband because he kids me so about it. Have you any suggestions about what to do with all my bargains?

Mrs. A.A.W.

The old saying goes "It's not a bargain if you don't need it," but I can sympathize with you. What woman who sews doesn't do the same thing? My suggestion to all of you is to go through your fabric supply this summer and decide to be charitable. Take a good look at each piece and see if it's a color you really want. You know how colors go out of style as well as the fabrics! If you haven't used it in three years, it's a good chance you never will.

There are many people in the world who are in desperate need of any kind of clothing and aren't quite as interested in the latest style or color. Check with church groups or other charitable organizations about this. You will not only be doing someone a kind favor, but it will ease your conscience too!

Boys Shun Dancing

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. (CP)—The highland fling, dance of fierce Scottish warriors, is left strictly to the girls in this town steeped in Gaelic tradition. Mrs. Brad Smith, highland dance teacher, says when boys join her class of 50 girls "they are teased by the other boys, so they don't really try."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Stewart, 799 Arbutus Street, Lake Cowichan, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Diane Patricia, to Mr. Joe Stanley Sibley, only son of Mrs. J. M. ## Marriage Takes Place on Saturday

PARTIES HONOR MARLENE IRVING

A corsage of pink ribbons was presented as a keepsake to bride-elect Miss Marlene Irving at a recent shower held in her honor in the Verrinder Avenue home of Mrs. William Townsend.

Hostesses were Mrs. Townsend and Miss Donna Clements. Gifts were suspended from a ceiling chandelier by pink and white streamers, and a ribbon-and-bow hat was made for the guest of honor. Her mother, Mrs. John H. Irving also received a pink ribbon corsage.

Invited guests included Mrs. K. Henry, Mrs. G. Williamson, Mrs. P. Clark, Mrs. M. Dalzell, Mrs. M. Nottingham, Mrs. A.

McAllister, Mrs. H. Swetnam, Mrs. E. Clements, Mrs. W. Hermon, Mrs. E. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. A. Ireland, the Misses Linda Dalzell, Diana Nelson, Carol Nottingham, Beverly Hermon, Carolyn McAllister, Janet Eaton, and Nancy Gray.

A decorated pink and white laundry basket contained gifts at a shower given by Mrs. Gordon Nottingham and Mrs. E. Clark in the latter's Vernon Avenue home. Pink and white carnation corsages, made by Mrs. L. Clark, and keepsake brooches were presented to the guest of honor and her mother.

Those present included Mrs.

SECOND BRIDE FOR WAGNER

NEW YORK (AP) — Democratic Mayor Robert F. Wagner, 55, was married Monday to Barbara Joan Cavanagh, 36. Francis Cardinal Spellman married the Roman Catholic couple. It was Miss Cavanagh's first marriage. She was a friend of the mayor and his first wife, Susan, who died of cancer March 2, 1964.

Best man was Bernard Morasky, Vancouver. Ushering guests to pews marked with tiny pink and white fans were Roland Hill and Charles Luhtala, Vancouver.

Earle Hill proposed the toast to his niece at the reception following in the Club Scho. A three-tier wedding cake, surrounded by yellow candles and tinsel floral arrangements, centered the head table.

For travelling on a honeymoon motoring trip to Jasper, Alta., and Edmonton, the new Mrs. Sorko donned a dress of pink Swiss eyelet over tulle, complemented with pink floral hat, white coat and navy blue accessories. An orchid corsage completed the ensemble.

The couple will make their home in North Vancouver.

CARRIES WHITE BIBLE

Gown of Corded Silk Worn By Bride Miss Joan Hill

A white lace-covered Bible, topped with a single orchid, was carried by Joan Patricia Hill when she became the bride of Rolf Sorko, Vancouver, recently.

A gown of corded silk, styled with a full train, was worn by the bride. The bodice of the gown featured a scoop neckline and elbow-length sleeves, highlighted with floral applique centered with pearls and crystals.

A bow accented the empire waistline. Her veil of hand-rolled silk illusion net misted from a coronet of seed pearls and crystals.

Arrangements of summer flowers were at the altar of St. Mark's Anglican Church when Canon R. Willis officiated at the double-ring ceremony uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Hill, 3350 Biscoe Drive, and the son of Mrs. Maria Sorko, Vancouver, and Hans Sorko, Germany. Mr. Hill gave his daughter in marriage.

Soloist Miss Carol Ann Waugh, Kamloops, sang "The Wedding Prayer" during the ceremony.

ATTENDS SISTER

Mrs. B. Burgess was matron of honor for her sister in a gown of aqua silk chiffon over satin, with floral headpiece on tone. Bridesmaid, Miss Mickey Mayo chose a similar outfit. Both carried fans on tone, surrounded by yellow chrysanthemums.

Lisa Burgess was flower girl for her aunt in a frock of white Swiss eyelet over pale aqua tulle and floral headband on tone. She carried a basket of yellow chrysanthemums.

AT RECEPTION

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes will cross to Vancouver on Friday to attend a reception, arranged to mark the 67th anniversary of the foundation of Switzerland. The affair is being hosted by the country's consul, Mr. Charles Kilchenmann, and Mrs. Kilchenmann.

Coming and Going

Members of the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club are on the go at present. Mrs. S. Hamill, national chairman of the United Nations Liaison Committee of BPW Clubs, has returned to Victoria after attending the national board meeting held at the King Edward Hotel in Toronto last weekend. Attending the international congress of the BPW to be held in Washington, D.C. from Friday until next Tuesday are three other Victoria members, Mrs. Roland Webster, Mrs. L. Wright and Miss Joan Beard. While in Washington they will be the guests of the national president of the American Federation of the BPW at a banquet and reception. They have also received invitations to attend a reception at the Canadian Embassy.

Here for Vows

Mrs. Maria Sorko travelled from Vancouver to attend the recent marriage of Miss Joan Hill to her son, Mr. Rolf Sorko. Other Vancouver guests were Mr. Gus Sorko, Mr. and Mrs. B. Morasky, Mr. C. Luhtala, Mr. L. Luhtala, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hill, and Mr. and Mrs. M. Hoey with Sharyn and Wayne. Also from out-of-town guests were Miss Carol Ann Waugh, Kamloops; Mr. J. Popovich, Ladysmith; and Mr. and Mrs. A. Chester and Ricky, and Mr. and Mrs. B. Sahadeo, all of Youbou, B.C.

Cocktail Party

Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Anderson will entertain at the cocktail hour next Tuesday evening in their Shasta Place home. Guests of honor will be their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Kell of London, Eng., who have been visiting Mrs. Kell's parents for the last month. Mrs. Kell is the former Judy Anderson of this city. The Kells will be returning to England in August.

From Vancouver

Gifts In Well

A pink and white wishing well held the gifts at a shower party given for bride-elect Miss Madge Wallace whose marriage takes place on Saturday. Hostess was Miss Sharon Preston, the affair being held at her home on Langford Street. A corsage of yellow roses was presented to the bride-elect and her mother, Mrs. R. F. Wallace, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. R. Robinson, received corsages of pink carnations. There were 23 guests.

Surprise

Roses on corsage were presented to bride-elect Miss Elizabeth Elgin and her mother, Mrs. T. L. Elgin, when the bride-to-be was honored at a surprise shower, given in the vicarage of St. Michael's Anglican Church by the Sunday school teachers. Gifts were in a decorated box. Guests included Mrs. J. Rogers, Mrs. R. Speight, Mrs. O. Pope, Mrs. E. Ingram, Mrs. West, Mrs. P. Fatt, Mrs. A. McDonald, Mrs. N. Woods, Mrs. A. Morris, Mrs. D. Paine, Mrs. J. Boag, the Misses Joan Rogers, Maureen Marshall and Laurie Bradley.

Several out-of-town guests have arrived for the wedding. Already here are the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dennis of Woodstock; Mr. and Mrs. J. Hutton of London, Ont.; Mrs. A. McCallum, Riverside, Calif.; and Mrs. A. Kope, Bellingham, Wash.

CAMOSUN CHAPTER, IODE

Garden Setting Proves Drawing Card for Tea

The spacious back garden of the Fort Street home of Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. R. F. Macrae was the lovely setting for a garden tea held by the Camosun Chapter of the IODE, Wednesday afternoon.

Set on the covered, Mexican-style patio, the tea table was presided over by chapter regent Mrs. Frances Mainprize, Mrs. Elsie Lowthian, municipal regent; Mrs. P. Corby and Mrs. Warren Smith.

Elsewhere in the garden, tea tables were set up for the guests. More than 80 attended. Refreshments included sandwiches, petit fours and cakes. Serviteurs were Mrs. A. Anderson, Mrs. T. Leach, Miss Agnes Christensen, Miss Ellen Cooke and Miss Karen Mainprize.

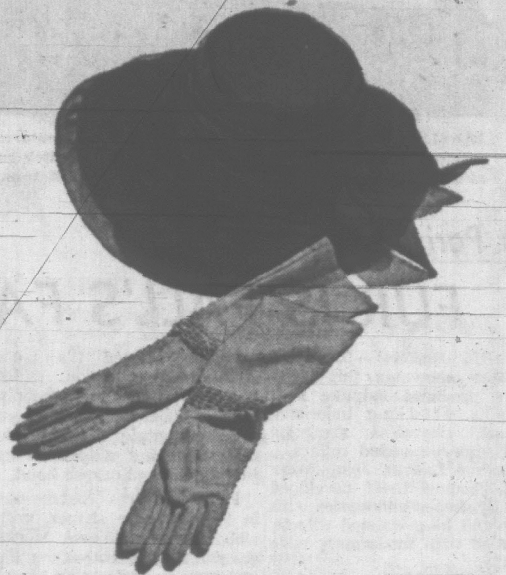

A large afghan, made and donated by Mrs. H. Osgood, was displayed beside the ornamental pool, for a raffle.

Door prizes were a cup and saucer set, won by Mrs. J. Gordon, and a cream and sugar set, won by Miss Isabel Dicken. Mrs. H. Jeune was winner of the afghan raffle.

Proceeds of the tea amounted to $120.60 and will go to chapter funds.

Other IODE members organizing the event included Mrs. J. R. Campbell, general convener; Mrs. H. C. Corbett, tea convener, and Mrs. E. Meiss, treasurer.

How long will a Volvo last in Canada? We don't know yet. Volvos have only been here nine years. But if you had a Volvo compact and kept it half that eleven years you could spend your money on something besides car payments. And you'd save money on gas, too. Volvos get 30 miles to the gallon even with automatic transmission. Come in any time and test drive one.

Susan Hildebrandt to Reign as Lady of the Lake

By PAT DUFOUR

A freckle-faced 17-year-old, Susan Hildebrandt, won the title and crown of Lady of the Lake, Wednesday evening. No one was more surprised than she was, unless, perhaps, it was her four younger brothers!

An infectious smile and outgoing personality helped win the title for Susan who, after the results were announced kept repeating, "I never really felt I had a chance... for years I've watched girls getting crowned; never dreaming it could happen to me."

Susan was the choice of the local branch of the International Woodworkers of America in the contest which saw nine local beauties compete for the chance to reign at the Lake Cowichan regatta, to be held August 22.

KIWANIS SPONSORS

The competition was arranged by the regatta sponsors, the Kiwanis Club of Cowichan Lake, and culminated in a dinner at Riverside Inn with each lovely contender being asked to stand and give a speech to the members, guests and judges.

Maureen Duffus of the Daily Colonist and myself had motored up to Cowichan Lake to act as judges. Sharing the honors with us was Jack Stothers, manager of Western Forest Products Limited.

Nobody was more surprised than we were when, after careful deliberation and tabulation we came up with a trio of coincidences that would be hard to beat.

Susan and her two princesses have all set their sights on university education and careers in the teaching profession. If this isn't enough of a similarity, the senior princess answers to Suzanne Castley and the junior princess is willowy Susie Berar.

Suzanne is 17 and was chosen by her fellow members of the Lake Cowichan Teen Association. Eighteen-year-old Susie was the choice of the local Credit Union.

NINE CANDIDATES

Other candidates were Kathleen Cooper, Order of the Royal Purple; Linda Croteau, Consumers Co-operative; Marianne Price, Kiwanis Club; Carol Ketch, Youbou Teen Town; Carol Stewart, Royal Canadian Legion and Ladies' Auxiliary; Mohinder Sall, Mesachie Local Volunteer Fire Department.

Debouts on the highway resulted in Maureen and I arriving 30 minutes late. Yet, with typical up-island generosity, our tardiness was barely noted. It must have been the longest delay in the lives of the young beauties, waiting to go through their paces, and looking like flowers in their fresh short formal.

After our initial interview with the girls, the trio of judges was almost as nervous as they were as we sat down to dinner, provided over by Victor Gill. We needn't have worried, the warmth of those around us proved the most effective tranquilizer in existence!

One of the head table guests was Mrs. M. Child, who everyone at Lake Cowichan lovingly refers to as "our lady mayor." She rules as chairman of the village commission, being in her fifth year of service in this capacity. Her greatest supporters are the four men who work with her. In all, she's spent 30 years as a commission member.

Victor Gill is justly proud of the results achieved by his 28-member club. Everyone who's ever attended the Lake Cowichan regatta will judge it one of the finest summer attractions of the Island, offering the best in entertainment and keen competition in water sports.

The biggest money-raising activity of the club, the regatta demands the utmost of every member and every penny realized is ploughed back into the group's main project, beautiful 100-acre Lakeview Park.

The Kiwanis Club took over the Lady of the Lake contest last year and they're proud that last year's winner, Miss Linda Davies will represent Lake Cowichan at this year's Pacific National Exhibition.

As we left for Victoria, our last glimpse was of Linda and her successor, arms clasped. Friends since childhood, Lake Cowichan's "royal" rulers are the happiest girls in the up-Island community today.

At Paris Fashion Shows

FUR IS FALL'S FAVORITE

PARIS (Reuters)—The Paris couture showings this week have produced ladylike hem lengths, sliding indecisive waists, sleeveless armholes and high-rise rolled collars.

Jeanne Lanvin, Jean Patou and Jacques Griffe developed lightly-shaped silhouettes with low and loose-waisted effects, teamed with moderately wide skirts.

Lanvin and Patou played up new ideas in collars which are attached to the dress instead of the coat.

Bare arms may freeze in winter, but the new silhouettes seen Wednesday carry a built-in immunity against sore throats.

Waistlines turn up all over the place, ranging from lofty empire heights in formal evening gowns, to low-waisted effects at Griffe and Patou.

Griffe also concentrates on fancy helmets with fringes, ruching, and fur bandings which play up an occasional glimpse of knecaps as the mannequins walk.

GOWNS VEILED

Formal gowns at Lanvin are veiled under loose, floating, wing panels attached to jeweled medallions which replace a necklace at the throatline. Off come the angel wings after the grand entrance, and underneath is a basic and beautiful chiffon evening gown.

Sportswear is amusing and wearable without being overly eccentric.

Lanvin opened the new streamlined collection, which has been reduced to 65 models, with a Mexican poncho worn over horizontally striped stockings, matching striped jersey jumper top and draped hood.

Patou features coat-dresses in loose trapeze shapes, with ribbed knit turtleneck sweaters and fancy-textured woolen stockings in contrasting bright colors.

The kerchief hat has won the millinery race in almost every house that has shown to date.

MINK KERCHIEF

It comes in soft casual versions at Ricci, with the triangular point fluttering behind. Lanvin and Patou give it a more sophisticated look, with stiffening at the back, or elevate the humble kerchief via luxury medias of mink or embroidery.

Patou features kerchief-draped turbans, with loose flowing snoods which drop to the shoulder blades over high-rise turtleneck collars.

Jules Crayak's silhouette for Jeanne Lanvin is as thin as a cigarette. There is no bulk, not even the bother of buttons.

Close-bodied coats shown in the Lanvin collection met a centre front. Loops from throat to breastbone hooked them to buttons on the dress beneath. The narrow coats looked most like matching rajah tunics.

High rings of fluffy fur circled the throat. Hats were high, back-jutting variations on the wrapped bandanna. Hems covered the knee, or hit no higher than half way up the kneecap.

LANVIN COLLECTION

The Lanvin collection opened with a series of suits with flat sandwich-panel stoles hung from the shoulders over their small cardigan jackets. Long close sleeves on these suits followed through the collection.

There were other suits that had jackets hooking on to the dress beneath, in the manner of the tunic coats. Some of these curved away at hipbone level to show a low belt on the dress.

Recognizing the possibility that not everyone will want tunic coats buttoned tight over their breastbone, Crayak also designed redingotes with a tricky cut: Side panels instead of seams, cut in one with a deep hem border.

Short dancing dresses were cut in flat double and triple tiers, with the top as easy as a little sweater. There were short and long dresses with long contrasting underbodies, with a wide mock belt embroidered around the hips.

HAREM KNICKERS

Like Heim, Lanvin showed knee-length knickers blown into harem proportions. The Lanvin versions were bubblier, in green or raspberry, with sleeved pull-over tops.

Evening gowns in stiff satin or blowy chiffon were strapless. They had a long, strict empire shape with slight fullness released from just under the curve of the bosom. Pointed scarf coverings wrapped around the shoulders, but did not cover them.

Woman Hunts Worms

HALIFAX (CP)—Helen McCarney has worked for 200 students or part-time laborers, but finds it hard to get people to take her seriously. She wants them to pick worms. After 11 years in the dew-worm business in Quebec, Mr. and Mrs. McCarney moved to Nova Scotia where, she says, "the soil and temperature are perfect for night crawlers."

Film Star's Low Neckline

PARIS (UPI)—Film star Carrol Baker upstaged the fashions at the Jeanne Lanvin style parade Wednesday by showing up in an unfashionable plunging neckline.

The blonde actress, wearing a pink dress with an astounding neckline that plunged almost as far sideways as it did down, sat in the front row, and pulled her skirt up four inches above her knees while photographers clicked away.

Although Miss Baker's dress isn't good fashion in any city, the audience of press and buyers stared at her as much as at the Lanvin collection.

The star sat next to two elegant women of the diplomatic set, Mrs. David Bruce, wife of the U.S. ambassador to England, wearing a lavender raincoat over a pink dress, and Mrs. Herve Alphonse, wife of the French ambassador to the United States, in a navy blue linen suit.

MARRIED IN FIRST UNITED

Heirloom Diamond Ring Worn By Elizabeth Thomas

A family heirloom diamond ring fulfilled the tradition of "something old" for Elizabeth Ann Thomas when she became the bride of Brian Edward Henley recently.

A floor-length gown of white peau de soie, styled on classic lines, was worn by the bride. Her veil of illusion net misted from a floral cluster of net and pearls. Pink Briarcrest roses were in her bouquet.

Pink and white gladioli and carnations were at the altar of First United Church when Rev.

R. J. D. Morris heard vows exchanged between the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Thomas, 150 Homer Road, and the son of Sgt. and Mrs. George Healey, Camp Petawawa, Ont. Mr. Thomas gave his daughter in marriage.

"Praise My Soul, the King of Heaven" was played by organist Mrs. A. Powell as the bride entered the church. "O Perfect Love" and "Ave Maria" were played during the signing of the register.

Miss Sheila Thomas was maid of honor for her sister in a gown of pale pink brocade with whimsie headpiece in tone. Her bouquet was of white carnations.

Flower girl Elizabeth Holland wore a frock of pink nylon with toning headband. She carried a colonial bouquet in pink and white tones.

Best man was Robert Hughes, and ushering guests were Bruce Ferris and Peter Jarratt.

Douglas Hawkes proposed the toast to his niece at the reception following in the church social suite. A three-tier wedding cake centred the lace-covered bride's table, and pink and white floral arrangements completed table decorations.

A pink boucle suit was the choice of the new Mrs. Healey for travelling on a honeymoon trip to the mainland. She complemented her ensemble with white accessories and a white carnation corsage.

The couple is making their home in Victoria.

Newlyweds Make Home In Nanaimo

Following a honeymoon trip to Penticton and the provincial interior, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Michael Smerek are now making their home in Nanaimo.

The couple was married recently in St. John's Anglican Church in a quiet double-ring ceremony at which Canon George Biddle officiated.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. David Townsend, 3064 Washington Avenue, Victoria, and Mr. and Mrs. M. Smerek of Lethbridge, Alta. The bride is the former Merla June Lang.

Given in marriage by her step-brother, William Townsend, the bride wore a gown of bone-toned lace and silk complemented with accessories in tone. She carried a white prayer book, topped with a corsage of coral gladioli and white freesia.

Her only attendant, Miss Sandy Bulloch, chose a coral dress, accented with bone accessories.

Best man was Brian Ashford. A reception followed the ceremony, being held in the Government Street home of Mr. and Mrs. Brian Ashford.

For travelling on honeymoon, the new Mrs. Smerek chose a blue suit, complete with beige accessories and a coral corsage.

B.C. Forestry Appointments Announced

A shuffle of six senior men in the B.C. Forest Service was announced Wednesday by Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williams.

The new postings follow up promotions last month in the top three posts resulting from retirement of Deputy Minister Gerald McKee. The new appointments are effective on Sept. 15.

H. B. Forse, at present in charge of the protection division in Victoria, will become the district forester for Vancouver Forest District, which includes Vancouver Island. He replaces Ian Cameron, who earlier was promoted to assistant chief forester in charge of planning.

W. C. Phillips, now district forester at Kamloops, will replace Mr. Forse as chief of the protection division here.

A. H. Dixon, now district forester at Prince George, will replace Mr. Phillips at Kamloops.

N. A. McRae, now district forester at Prince Rupert, will replace Mr. Dixon at Prince George.

H. M. Pogue, now forester in charge of working plans here, will replace Mr. McRae at Prince Rupert.

The final appointment creates a new position of district forester for the recently constituted Cariboo Forest District with headquarters at Williams Lake.

The post will be taken by W. E. L. Young, now forester in charge of surveys.

FINE ARTS

Islanders Rewarded At Banff

Several Victoria and Island residents recently participated in the awards evening at the 33rd annual summer session of the Banff School of Fine Arts.

Some $35,000 in scholarships and bursaries were won by 185 students.

The prizes are provided by the school, the University of Alberta, provincial government and a number of other organizations and private individuals.

Vancouver-Islanders-receiving awards were as follows:

C. O. Nickle Foundation Scholarships: Patricia Parkes, Victoria, painting, $50; Philip Adamson, piano, $100.

Banff School of Fine Arts: Maureen Lawson, Victoria, ballet, $75; Ginie Beardsley, Victoria, photography, $80; Patricia Parkes, painting, tuition, room and board scholarship.

Individual and Community Awards: Chris Bushell, Saanichton, Greater Victoria Drama Festival and North Saanich Community, $150 and $185.

Joseph F. Smith Memorial: Philip Adamson, $100.

Woman Makes Third Try For Council

A fifth candidate has filed papers for the forthcoming by-election for Victoria alderman.

Mr. Evelyn MacKenzie, 121 Menzies, who unsuccessfully contested the last two civic elections, has again declared her candidacy on a four-point platform which includes:

• Development of the Gorge as a Centennial project.

• A liaison link between municipal councils and school boards.

• A clean-up of pornographic magazines on newsstands.

Mrs. MacKenzie has been a resident of the city for the past 30 years.

70 Teen-Agers Here Friday For Visit

Seventy Canadians between the ages of 13 and 18 will visit Victoria Friday under auspices of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews.

They will be accompanied by Col. J. Russell Dudley, B.C. executive director of the council.

Travelling in two buses, the visitors will go direct from Swartz Bay to the Butchart Gardens and continue to the Royal London Wax Museum.

They will receive a box lunch from the T. Eaton Co. Ltd., and in the afternoon will be guests of the Victoria Daily Times at a swim party in the Crystal Garden.

Car Mishap Injures Mother, Three Children

A two-car collision at Caledonia and Chambers Tuesday night sent a woman and her three children to hospital, but they were discharged after treatment for cuts and bruises.

Shaken up in the collision were Mrs. Isabel Hartl, 28, 2020 Belmont, and her children, Donna, 6; Susan, 7, and Cheryl, 5.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

It's hard to believe. The only worthwhile daytime show, NBC-TV's Today, shunted aside like so much garbage simply for a while. But then it isn't every day a Canadian killer whale gets an American civic reception.

As expected, it happened in the usual ballyhooed, brassy-American manner.

The 21-inch screen was filled with all the falderrall usually associated with the welcome home of a be-medalled hero.

It was quite a show, believe me. The humorous aspect was achieved when almost everyone interviewed suddenly became expert in the ways of the mammal.

Encyclopedia Britannica could easily add to its info from all that offered. As far as this column is concerned, there'll be namu written about it here.

There are many ways to spend a quiet summer evening. One of the best is with Channel 2's Time Out for Football on Tuesdays.

Sportscaster Ted Reynolds and B.C. Lions' coach Dave Skrien talk football in plain unvarnished facts. The whole show is spiced with films of the Lions in action.

You don't have to be a football buff to enjoy Skrien's football talk. In fact, if you're not an expert you can claim to be partially so after exposure to the half-hour.

Skrien verbally clips off the action in a manner, I imagine, he uses with his own players behind the locked doors of the club's screening room.

Skrien is interestingly absorbing in manner as he simplifies the plays and points out what to watch for as the action unfolds. The show is going to be a great aid during the football season, particularly if we living room quarterbacks are robbed of the opportunity to watch CFL games at home.

Reynolds also devotes a part of the program to some of the Lions' players. Steve Shafer and Bob Swift outlined their part in the club's defensive and offensive strategy Tuesday.

It's all good solid sports talk. Now if only Ted wouldn't look so doggone bored.

The 14 elimination matches of the team match-play best-ball tournament for the CBS golf classic which will be on the network Dec. 25 through March 25, 1966, will be played on the LaCosta Country Club course near Carlsbad, Calif. Thirty-two of the country's top pro golfers will be involved.

Tough Stand 'Late'

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — The stepped-up war in Viet Nam, ordered by President Johnson, might never have been necessary if the United States had been tougher sooner.

Johnson's actions are a major effort to save Viet Nam from a Communist take-over although the United States has been pumping money, arms and, to a limited degree, men into that country for more than 10 years. The American military manpower buildup began five years ago.

For eight years the United States, under presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy, backed a dictator who finally was ousted in a coup and killed.

This was President Ngo Dinh Diem, assassinated in 1963. Because he was a strong anti-Communist, the two American administrations apparently felt they had to put up with him or see chaos and communism take over the country.

The U.S. wanted to help the Vietnamese masses come out of their ancient, primitive backwardness but, for its own sake, the United States wanted to stop the spread of communism by preventing a Red take-over in Viet Nam. This has been American policy around the world since 1948.

PEOPLE'S NEEDS MANY

The backward Vietnamese, impoverished, largely illiterate, lacking real medical care or education and with a life expectancy of 32 years, had no understanding of democracy, communism, capitalism, or socialism.

They could be expected to turn to the side that helped them the most or promised the most.

When Diem, despite all the American help, failed to provide this incentive the United States could have taken one of three courses:

Try to compel him to end the tyranny, put in reforms and provide hope; get out if he didn't on the grounds that without change the cause was hopeless; or sweat it out with him in the hope things might turn out right.

The U.S. chose the third course. The failure of the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations to make the tough decisions left the country wide open to discontent and growing guerrilla war.

ILLUSTRATES NEW BOOK

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

An artist of international repute has joined the ever-growing circle of Victoria painters.

She is Miss Annora Brown, whose work has been sought by art lovers in Britain, Australia, New Zealand and many parts of Canada and the United States.

Just a few weeks ago, Miss Brown acquired a pleasant, tree-shaded bungalow at Deep Cove and, in so doing, transferred her talented brush from Fort Macleod, Alberta, to Vancouver Island.

It was a fortunate move for publisher Gray Campbell, who also lives at Deep Cove. He wanted an artist to illustrate a new book on pioneer nursing in northern British Columbia, and Miss Brown seemed the answer to a publisher's prayer.

DESIGNED JACKET

She drew the jacket design for this work, No Man Stands Alone, by Amy Wilson, RN, of Calgary, and also created 13 pen and ink sketches as headings for chapters.

The book is now being printed and bound by the Sidney Review.

"I have great hopes for it," said publisher Campbell, who lives at 10001 Madrona.

Meantime, silver-haired Miss Brown is continuing the color work for which she is famed and her finely-detailed canvases are a delight to neighbors and visitors.

Working in a neat timbered studio behind her home, Miss Brown specializes in wild flowers and rural landscapes.

"Prairie Chicken Dance" was one of eight paintings picked by the Alberta government during its golden jubilee contest, and is valued at $1,000.

The Glenbow Foundation commissioned her to paint 200 pictures of various Alberta wildflowers and she completed the task in three years.

One of them, a study of the blue clematis, proved so irresistible that in Calgary an unknown admirer cut the painting out of its frame and made off with it.

The Glenbow Foundation has also acquired many of Miss Brown's paintings of Alberta Indians and prairie landscapes.

Much of her work is sold through Canadian art galleries and the Women's Committee of the Allied Arts Centre in Calgary. She has produced some 900 illustrations for books, including school text books on historical subjects.

Miss Brown has been illustrating books for J. M. Dent of Vancouver and Toronto for the past 12 years and, when on a rush job, she often works from 12 to 14 hours a day.

Relic of Feudal Times, 'Knot' Garden in Bloom

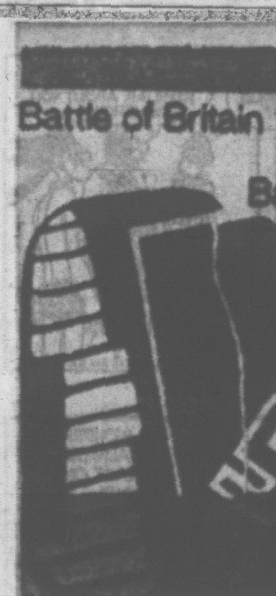

By AB KENT
Times City Hall Reporter

A relic of feudal times, has a prominent place in Victoria Centennial Square in the colorful "knot" garden adjoining McPherson Playhouse.

Probably the only one of its kind in Canada, according to parks administrator Herbert Warren, its display of miniatures is now at a seasonal height.

They include two varieties of begonia, alyssum, tagetes, dwarf marigold and lobelia.

During winter months, the brick-walled garden is outlined in low hedges with borders ready to grow spring bulbs, English daisies, dwarf wallflower, viola, pansy, primrose and forget-me-not.

None grows more than 10 inches high.

Mr. Warren said this garden is a replica of one to be found in Hampton Court Garden, but for being slightly compressed into wedge shapes to conform with the radial lines of the square.

The first flower gardens, he related, had their origin in the kitchen garden of castles and monasteries where herbs were grown as medicants and food flavoring.

Taking on an orderly arrangement with time, the borders were outlined with stones, bricks and discarded sawp bones. These gave way to lavender and boxwood as favorite edgings, while herbs gave way to flowers.

Then, to give a pleasing effect in winter, the beds were arranged in intricate designs or knots and the paths between lined with colored stones.

The knot garden reached its peak of popularity in Elizabethan times, with the best examples preserved at Hampton Court, using a full range of modern varieties.

NOTED CANADIAN PAINTER NOW LIVING ON ISLAND

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

When her mother became ill in 1930, Miss Brown returned to Fort Macleod to care for her and it was then she began painting wildflowers.

In 1951, Dents published her own book, Old Man's Garden, which is still selling in many parts of Canada and the U.S.

With her own illustrations, Miss Brown wrote of hundreds of plants and flowers in Old Man's Garden, a district of the Alberta foothills. She told of wild flowers of the province were sought by botanists as avidly as gold.

During her brief residence in Deep Cove, she has had several inquiries from local art collectors, and it has been suggested she should exhibit at Greater Victoria Art Gallery.

"I have really fallen for Deep Cove," she said. "I miss my many friends in Alberta, but I have fine neighbors here, and Mr. and Mrs. Gray Campbell are among them."

HERE IN 1885

The artist proudly recalls that her father came out to Fort Macleod from London, England, in 1885 and served with the North West Mounted Police. He was a member of "D" division, which built Fort Steele, and rode through the Crownest Pass with the famous Kootenay Brown as guide.

As a change from painting, Miss Brown collects driftwood and sea shells and treasures a collection of hundreds of color slides of historic buildings, flowers and Indians.

Her home is, in effect, a treasury of fine art achieved by years of practice and effort.

"MUSIC, POETRY"

"I try to get a feeling of music and poetry into my work," she says, "and I prefer working on a flat table to an easel—there is no wiggle to a table."

Born in Fort Macleod, Miss Brown has been painting for more than 30 years. After taking an art course by correspondence, she worked her way through the Ontario College of Art in Toronto by winning scholarships and awards.

Then she taught art at Mount Royal College, Calgary and later at the Banff School of Fine Arts.

Dief Demands Postman Pay Paper Details

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker demanded Wednesday that the federal government make public the report of the pay research bureau on postal salaries.

He told reporters that he made a formal request for the civil service bureau's report after Revenue Minister Benson called him a liar and was told it is confidential.

"This reply, he said, 'makes a subterfuge' of Mr. Benson's and Prime Minister Pearson's statements that Mr. Diefenbaker was wrong in saying the pay research bureau recommended striking postal workers get an increase of $600 a year.

The Progressive Conservative leader said his demand for publication of the report "will be repeated," apparently when Parliament reassembles.

"The government can end this strike by showing a reasonable attitude to the reasonable requests of reasonable men."

"Instead of that, Canada is suffering from an ineffective and stumbling government which should have faced up to the postal workers' situation weeks ago."

URGES BARGAINING

Mr. Diefenbaker called for a system of collective bargaining for civil servants, with matters unresolved—at the bargaining table to be submitted to a three-man panel headed by a Supreme Court of Canada judge for binding arbitration.

Mr. Diefenbaker called for a system of collective bargaining for civil servants, with matters unresolved—at the bargaining table to be submitted to a three-man panel headed by a Supreme Court of Canada judge for binding arbitration.

He told reporters that he made a formal request for the civil service bureau's report after Revenue Minister Benson called him a liar and was told it is confidential.

"This reply, he said, 'makes a subterfuge' of Mr. Benson's and Prime Minister Pearson's statements that Mr. Diefenbaker was wrong in saying the pay research bureau recommended striking postal workers get an increase of $600 a year.

The Progressive Conservative leader said his demand for publication of the report "will be repeated," apparently when Parliament reassembles.

"The government can end this strike by showing a reasonable attitude to the reasonable requests of reasonable men."

"Instead of that, Canada is suffering from an ineffective and stumbling government which should have faced up to the postal workers' situation weeks ago."

'WANTON U.S. EXAMPLE' CHARGED IN SKYSCRAPERS

MOSCOW (AP)—Cries of protest are being raised over plans to turn downtown Moscow's skyline into a huddle of skyscrapers.

ing the wanton American example which is devoid of tradition?" asks Dr. V. Oltarzhevsky, one of the leading Soviet Union architects.

Plans for downtown rebuilding will ruin the architectural effect of the Kremlin fortress, he complains in the newspaper Literaturnaya Gazeta. He adds that proposed tall buildings will overshadow and destroy the beauty of other monuments in the capital's centre.

He mainly objects to the massive 12-storey, 6,000-room Rossiya Hotel now under construction east of the Kremlin. The architect says the towering Hotel Moskva, built in the 1930s at the foot of Red Square, overshadowed the Lenin Museum nearby.

Now, he says, the planners want to extend the Moskva down to Sverdlov Square, a move he predicts will erode the harmonious unity of the square whose dominating feature is the noble Bolshoi Theatre building.

And if that isn't enough, "at the very beginning of Gorky Street, a site is being prepared for the 23-storey skyscraper Hotel National."

Oltarzhevsky advises the city planners to redevelop their schemes to give Moscow the 10th-century look.

He proposes banning buildings higher than six to eight storeys within a radius of about a mile from the Kremlin. Below that, for another half-mile, buildings of no more than 10 storeys would be permitted.

Oltarzhevsky praises the efforts of city planners in London, Paris and Stockholm to preserve historic architectural ensembles.

'BIG WAR NO ANSWER TO PEACE'

GENEVA (UPI)—The Soviet Union warned Wednesday any serious disarmament negotiations will be "much more difficult" following President Lyndon Johnson's decision to send more American troops to Viet Nam.

In a first reaction to the president's announcement, Soviet disarmament officials here said escalation of the Viet Nam war will have "grave consequences."

"In any case, any negotiations on disarmament will be much more difficult," they said. Tuesday, Soviet disarmament negotiator Semyon K. Tsarapkin accused the West of blocking disarmament agreements by "aggression" in Viet Nam and preparing for "a big war."

ASK ANDY

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Noel Kornett, age 10, of Newport News, Va., for his question:

Which galaxy are we in?

Telescope photographs show thousands of galaxies strewn throughout the wide oceans of outer space. Radiotelescopes trap whispers from still farther galaxies. Among all these sprawling star systems, it might be hard to spot the galaxy that is our own home in the heavens.

The science of astrophysics is stretching our minds far out into the cosmic universe. Our space program makes these wide reaches of space seem real and vivid to us. In a few generations mankind may visit other solar systems. In the remote future he may visit other galaxies. The experts say that this is unlikely. But we can dream about it.

We can imagine visits to the far-flung galaxies strewn through the endless oceans of space. We can wonder how a spaceman would chart his way home to the right galaxy among thousands and thousands of other galaxies. He would, of course, know as much and far more than our experts about what to expect. We already know that galaxies are not strewn helter-skelter as they seem to be. They tend to occur in groups.

The swarming galaxies are much closer together than the stars. If a star were one inch wide, the average distance of its neighbors would be about 360,000 miles. If a galaxy were reduced to one inch, its neighbors would be less than four feet away. And galaxies clustered in groups are still closer to each other.

Some Galaxies

Our galaxy is one of a group of 18. This galaxy family occupies an ellipse-shaped region of space about two million light years in length. A light year equals almost six million million ordinary miles. That figure is six followed by 12 zeros. Our galaxy is at one end of this long cosmic corridor, and at the other end is the magnificent spiral nebula seen from earth in the constellation Andromeda.

That returning spaceman would have to spot our local group of galaxies. He might mistake the Andromeda galaxy for his home, but not for long. Our own stupendous, pinwheeling system of stars is attended by a pair of small satellite-type galaxies. We call them the Clouds of Magellan.

The next nearest cluster of galaxies is in the direction of the star Virgo. Its distance is some 14 million light years, and it is unusual because most of its members are of the spiral nebula type. Some galaxies are fuzzy balls of gas, others are flattened and some are pinwheeling spirals like our own. And our individual galaxy has its own individual place in the cosmos.

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Mark Thomas, age eight, of Winston-Salem, N.C., for his question:

How do Eskimos heat their houses?

Many Eskimos live in up-to-date houses. They heat them as we do, with fires or furnaces. Some live in simple shacks. They may build fires of coal or wood. Or they may use old-fashioned oil burners. A few Eskimos still build round igloos of frozen snow. If an Eskimo goes hunting, he often builds an igloo when he wants to sleep. A warm fire inside an igloo would melt the walls of ice. So the Eskimo builds a small fire.

TEEN-AGE CANADA

Check Mate With Checkmate

By JACK HUTTON

Well, I guess it had to come to Canada. A psychological service for determining how you and a blind date will get along has become an overnight rage in Montreal.

The man behind it, Harold Haron, 37, doesn't know whether to be more surprised or delighted. But in the meantime, he's processing orders in his suburban home with his wife.

The game is called Checkmate. After filling out a list of 26 questions, you mail the list to Haron and he will return an imitation-wood figurehead that looks like a chess piece and can be worn as key-chain ornament or necklace.

The trick is that your Checkmate with a male face on the top will only link perfectly with a female Checkmate if you and the bearer of the other Checkmate have compatible personalities.

If you're complete opposites the Checkmates will face away from each other. Or you may be partially compatible—say, a 40-degree turn away. You're naturals to go out with each other if the two figures are nose to nose.

Questions

Here are the first five questions you face in the questionnaire which Haron has circulated among record shops:

Have you ever been in love? Do you believe in going steady? At what age do you want to marry: 16 to 20, 21 to 30, or never? Which quality do you like best in a date: good looks, agreeable nature—money? Are you shy at parties?

Later questions probe other likes, dislikes and attitudes. Do you dress to be comfortable, different or neat? Do you kiss on the first date? Do you believe you'll be rich 20 years from now?

"I carve the figures myself out of cherrywood," he added. "The base, which links with another Checkmate, is added later on the basis of the answers. And there are roughly 200 combinations that I can use."

"How accurate has it been? Well, it goes without saying that the game is intended as a conversation piece and a lot of fun. But the results have amazed me. Letters have come in from all over the country and parts of the United States."

Plattsburg, N.Y., became the first city after Montreal to pick up the fad. A group of teens formed what they call a Checkmate Club two weeks ago and report membership booming. The game isn't confined to the younger set. Adults have tried it too.

U.K. Diplomat Ordered Expelled By Russians

MOSCOW (UPI)—Russia Wednesday ordered the expulsion of a British diplomat on grounds that he was a contact man for convicted subversive agent Gerald Brooke.

Second secretary Anthony Bishop was declared persona non grata on recommendation of the court that sentenced Brooke to five years loss of liberty last week.

British charge d'affaires Thomas Brimelow denied the accusation when summoned to the Soviet ministry of foreign affairs.

Bishop was expected to leave Moscow at the end of the week.

FORMER KHRUSHCHEV MEN BACK IN LIMELIGHT

New Soviet Power Struggle

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Staff Writer
Four Soviet leaders who seemed to drop from public view two months ago have suddenly reappeared—and with a bang.
Their prominence in the Soviet press this week suggests that the collective leadership involved in a behind-the-scenes struggle over internal and external policies.
Critical and worrisome though the Southeast Asia situation may be for the Kremlin leadership, the tugging and pulling now seems to centre mostly on domestic affairs.
The four leaders who have reappeared are Nikolai V. Podgorny and Pyotr Y. Shelest, both party presidium members, and both Ukrainians; Pyotr N. Demichev, a high-ranking party secretary and a bright young man of light industry, and Gen-

NEW LONDON BRIDGE GIVEN GREEN LIGHT

LONDON (UPI)—Plans to pull down London Bridge and put a 2.4 million pound ($6.8 million) new one got the official go-ahead today.
The court of common council, the civic authority responsible, unanimously decided the new bridge should be built by 1970. The present structure is sinking into the River Thames bed at the rate of one inch every eight years and is not wide enough to take present-day traffic.

WAGON PURCHASED FOR $180

Once Used to Water Streets, Old Relic Sold to Museum

An old water wagon, once used in Victoria as a street sprinkler, is to go on public display. But not in Victoria. The old relic was sold the other night for $180 after it had stood unused for 30 years.

It is going to the Cowichan Valley Forest Museum, one mile north of Duncan on Somers Lake.

The old water wagon was bought for the museum by Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Wellburn of Deertown St., Duncan, who opened the museum in May of this year.

They have been collecting relics of the logging industry for the past 15 years. Mr. Wellburn retired a year ago from a managerial post with MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company.

He explained that the water wagons had once been used to fight forest fires and to haul water for men and animals.

Last owner of the wagon was P. T. Doswell, of 4116 Torquay, Saanich.

He estimated the old sprinkler to be more than 100 years old and if so it would be the same one reported to have been watering down Victoria streets more than a century ago.

Drawn by two horses, it sported two sprinklers on either side and two in the back. The driver operated the wagon by working the levers with his feet.

The wagon was reported to have been used later in Oak Bay spraying down the old Whilows racetrack between races.

Thirty years ago, the wagon was purchased by Arthur Lembrick, proprietor of the Gordon Head dairy, who thought it would be useful to water down his fields.

But most of the time it remained in retirement until Mr. Doswell discovered it. He had gone to the Lembrick's residence to look for wagon wheels but when he discovered they were attached to a water wagon he decided the relic was too good to carve up.

Since then the wagon has stood at the side of the Doswell home and attracted many admirers.

Duncan Girls' Bodies Found

The bodies of Duncan sisters Sharon and Violet Louie were recovered Wednesday from the White River near Sumner, Wash.

The girls, aged 11 and 14, drowned Tuesday when they slipped off the bank into the swift-flowing water.

A cousin, Alex James Jr., of Sumner, also fell but saved himself by clinging to a piling.

He told police he saw the sisters carried away by the current. They were still clinging to each other when they disappeared.

Daughters of Francis Louie, of Cowichan Indian band, they had been staying with an aunt in Sumner for the past year.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

TUSSAUD AT STAKE

Court to Rule
On Use of Name

Shakespeare claimed there was nothing in a name. Descendants of Madame Tussaud, founder in 1802 of the world famous Madame Tussaud's Wax Museum in London, don't agree.

Directors of Madame Tussaud's Ltd., have issued a writ against unauthorized persons using the name Tussaud "in connection with a waxwork museum in any manner calculated to lead to the belief that such waxwork is operated or organized by, or is in any way associated with, Madame Tussauds."

The Royal London Wax Museum in the Crystal Garden will watch the outcome of the case with interest. Their models come from Josephine Tussaud and Company Ltd., say that is trading unfairly on a famous family name.

N.W.T. Gets Prominent Labor Man

OTTAWA (CP)—Stuart Hodgson, 41, prominent Vancouver labor leader, has been named deputy commissioner of the Northwest Territories, Northern Affairs Minister Laing announced Wednesday.

He succeeds Wilfred G. Brown, who is retiring from the civil service because of poor health.

Mr. Hodgson has been an appointed member of the nine-man northwest territorial council since May, 1964. He will begin his administrative duties here Monday, working under B. G. Sivertz, commissioner of the Northwest Territories.

He has been financial secretary of the largest local in the International Woodworkers of America Union (CLC) since 1949 and has been active in the Vancouver Labor Council and the British Columbia Federation of Labor.

A navy veteran of the Second World War, he is married and has two children.

Red's U.S. Chief Dies

MOSCOW (AP)—Pettis Perry, American Negro Communist leader, has died after a long illness. He was 67. Pravda, organ of the Soviet Communist party, said Perry died last Saturday. The newspaper did not say where he died.

Directors of the Royal London Wax Museum have never claimed that their models were Madame Tussaud originals. In fact they have always carefully pointed out in their advertising that their figures come from Josephine Tussaud and stand on their own merits.

But Madame Tussaud officials are not satisfied. They want a court order compelling other firms to drop the Tussaud if they operate a wax museum.

Local officials had no comment on the issue but said they would be watching the proceedings with interest.

The sensitivity of the Madame Tussaud supporters is understandable.

Madame Marie learned her wax model trade from her uncle in Paris in the late 1700's. During the French Revolution she perfected her model making by being forced to make wax models of the heads of aristocrats destined for the guillotine.

She got the name Tussaud (she was born Marie Gresholtz in Berne, Switzerland) from Francois Tussaud whom she married in Paris in 1794 but left six years later.

After serving a three month jail sentence in a French prison—she was suspected of royalist sympathies—she moved to London.

There, in 1802, she opened her first wax museum using model heads of guillotine victims as the basis of her collection.

Two direct descendants, A. R. Tussaud and B. A. Tussaud still serve on the board of directors.

Madame Tussaud's museum, located on Marylebone Road, London, is a short walk from the Baker Street home of Sherlock Holmes.

Toronto Postmen Will Work Friday

Decisive Vote Ends Walkout

TORONTO (CP)—Striking postal workers in the Toronto area voted 1,857 to 347 today to return to work in a decision union leaders hoped would turn the tide and end the week-long unauthorized walkout.

At a mass meeting the postal clerks and letter carriers decided to report to work for the early-morning shift at 5 a.m. Friday.

But they were told they could, if they wished, go back on the job tonight and begin to move the mountain of mail that has accumulated here since last Thursday.

The vote was announced at 1:43 p.m. after national leaders of the three postal organizations urged the men to reverse their Wednesday decision and return to work.

The 2,200 postal clerks and 1,200 letter carriers have been on strike for a week to back demands for salary increases. The return to work of Toronto postmen is considered the key to ending the strike which has tied up mail deliveries in three provinces.

The strike committee told the cheering workers they should return to work for 14 days, then look at a report by federal mediator Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville, Ont. The committee said if the report was unfavorable another strike could be called.

Judge Anderson has said all postal employees should receive "further substantial" pay increases.

Pensioners Get Cheques, Says Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Steps have been taken to set up cheque-distribution centres for old age pensioners, Prime Minister Pearson said today.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh announced today emergency distribution centres for old-age pension cheques are being set up in all areas hit by walkouts of postal workers.

The Montreal area alone will have nine distribution centres.

Old-age pensioners who are bedridden are being asked to notify the health department's local offices "through a relative or friend" if they need their cheques brought to them. Delivery would be arranged by the department "as fast as this can be done."

(Joseph Belland, president of the postal-workers' brotherhood, at the same time said in a statement that he had been in touch with welfare officials and had informed them striking postal workers would not interfere with old-age pensioners wishing to go through picket lines to pick up their cheques at post offices closed down by the strike.)

Judge J. C. Anderson, appointed by the government last week to study postal employees' wage demands, was working on his report "and we are awaiting it," Mr. Pearson said.

Mr. Pearson said the cabinet session was devoted mainly to working on the government's spending program for the next fiscal year so that spending estimates can be prepared.

GIN CHEAPER THAN WATER

NEW YORK (AP)—Tiffany's, Fifth Avenue jewellers, plans to put two fountains in its window displays. But precious water in this city facing a shortage will not be used.

A distiller will donate seven cases of gin to be constantly recirculated in the fountains.

Mail Service 'Normal' As Backlog Vanishes

Mail deliveries were near normal in Victoria today as postal workers caught up on the last backlog of work.

By 5 a.m. this morning all first-class mail had been sorted and cleared.

Only material still awaiting delivery is a pile of third-class mail—mostly handouts and advertising material—on which there is an embargo, and a smattering of second-class mail, mostly monthly publications. The embargo will not be lifted until all other mail is cleared across Canada.

While the machinery hummed in Victoria the wheels were back in motion in Vancouver.

Members agreed Wednesday night to tote the mail for 14 days until federal commissioner Judge J. C. Anderson gives the government his recommendation.

But it was made clear that if the letter carriers don't like his recommendation they will strike again.

EXPRESSIVE POSE is struck by Charles Maguire of the Hamilton, Ont., section of the Postal Employees Association at a meeting which saw Montreal workers vote to stay on strike. Maguire had told them to "think very hard" about such action but got only light applause. (CP Wirephoto.)

BOMBERS BUSY

Airborne Division Arrives

SAIGON (AP)—Paratroopers of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division arrived in South Viet Nam today.

As 3,700 men of the 101st's First Brigade began landing at Cam Ranh Bay, 180 miles northeast of Saigon, a U.S. spokesman said B-52 jet bombers of the U.S. Strategic Air Command dumped 500 tons of bombs on suspected Viet Cong positions 35 miles southeast of Saigon.

After the B-52 raid—the sixth in South Viet Nam by the Okinawa-based bombers—several thousand paratroopers of the 173rd Airborne Brigade began combing the hilly area. By late today one Viet Cong had been killed, another captured, and there were no U.S. casualties, the spokesman reported.

The paratroopers, who landed at Cam Ranh Bay were greeted by the man who commanded their division when it dropped into Normandy to spearhead the Second World War invasion of France, Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor.

It was one of Taylor's last official acts in Viet Nam. He leaves Saigon Friday, to be replaced by Henry Cabot Lodge. Among the arrivals was Taylor's son Thomas, an intelligence officer with the brigade.

The landing came less than 24 hours after President Johnson announced U.S. forces in Viet Nam would be increased from 75,000 to 125,000 men. But a U.S. spokesman said transfer of the 101st Brigade was part of a six-battalion increase in U.S. forces that had been planned some weeks ago.

The paratroopers came from Oakland, Calif., aboard the troop transport Gen. Le Roy L. Eltinge. Their brigade commander, Col. James Timothy of New Orleans, La., said his men would deploy initially around Cam Ranh Bay to provide security for 2,500 U.S. Army engineers who are building a port and an airstrip on one of South Viet Nam's finest natural harbors.

The witnesses said two or three shots were fired from a car containing three Negroes. Some, however, thought there were only two Negroes in the auto.

Police said the car containing the Negroes was wrecked a short distance from the filling station.

Civil rights demonstrators made three marches to the courthouse Wednesday. The first two were completed without incident although white hecklers greeted them as they began the vigil.

About 50 whites gathered near the courthouse but police formed a line to separate them from the Negroes, who carried bedrolls and raincoats.

BOLSTER ARMY DIVISION

The paratroopers will reinforce 1,080 men of the U.S. Army's 1st Division who arrived July 12.

On the battlefield, an estimated 192 Viet Cong guerrillas were reported killed in a big government operation launched Wednesday in the Mekong Delta 100 miles southwest of Saigon, in Chuong Thien province.

Government losses were described as "light to moderate." U.S. and Vietnamese war planes made 73 strikes in support of the ground operation Wednesday, the spokesman said.

To the north, 26 Viet Cong were killed by U.S. and Vietnamese marines in a combined operation in the Duc An area about 60 miles south of Da Nang, U.S. spokesmen said.

Mars Like the Moon

WASHINGTON (AP)—Latest pictures of the planet Mars disclosed today that the planet may be pockmarked by up to 10,000 craters, and that it appears to be more like the moon than the earth in its surface features.

This was revealed by space agency scientists in a report to the White House. The report covered findings on 18 previously unpublished photographs taken by Mariner 4 on its epochal voyage to the planet.

The scientist who made the main report said that the findings "will profoundly affect scientific views about the origin of the solar system," and specifically may shed new light on the history of the earth.

Dr. Robert Leighton of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif., said the latest released pictures of the red planet reveal 70 craters ranging in diameter from three to 75 miles. He said that if the rest of the planet is like the area photographed by Mariner during a period of 25 minutes, there must be "more than 10,000 craters (on Mars) compared to a mere handful on the earth."

Leighton said evidence from the photographs "neither demonstrates nor precludes the possibility of the existence of life" on the planet.

But the fact that the photos indicate Mars never had any oceans or significant quantities of water makes the prospect of finding life on Mars "less promising," he said.

The scientist took the view that if life does exist on Mars in some primitive form—perhaps bacterial or plant life—Mars "may be the best, perhaps the only, place in the solar system for preserving primitive conditions."

The report was presented at a White House ceremony in which Johnson remarked that he was "a little bit relieved" the photographs didn't show more signs of life out there.

He said he felt this way because he belonged to the generation which writer-actor-producer Orson Welles "scared out of its wits" with a realistic radio broadcast during the 1930s of an imaginary invasion of earth by Martians.

Leighton said one of the photographs revealing craters is "one of the most remarkable scientific photographs of this century."

Referring to another photograph covering an area in Mars' South Polar regions, he said some of the craters "appear to be rimmed with frost."

NO CLOUDS SHOWN

Leighton said Mariner's photographs of the planet disclose "no earthlike features such as mountain chains, great valleys or continental masses" and there is no evidence of clouds.

He said from study of the photographs so far these inferences about Mars can be drawn:

● In terms of evolutionary history Mars is "more moon-like than earthlike."

● The age of the planet may be somewhere between two and five billion years.

● The surface of the planet is "remarkably preserved"—that is its very thin atmosphere has not changed the surface of the planet since the surface was born.

● The planet never had water sufficient to create oceans or other large bodies, because if it had such water at any time in its history, there would have been "severe erosion" of the planet's surface which is not evident from Mariner's photographs.

● The interior of the planet has been "long inactive" as compared to the earth, which Leighton said is "internally dynamic."

As to the four Commons vacancies, they were fairly recent and Parliament wasn't due to meet until September.

"I'll have to begin to give consideration to this once we get some of these other matters disposed of," he said.

The vacancies are in Digby, Annapolis-Kings in Nova Scotia, Victoria and Kenora in Rainy-River in Ontario and Montreal.

Two were Liberal-held seats and two Progressive Conservative.

WIRE BRIEFS

Strike Vote Asked

TORONTO (CP)—Customs and excise officers here Wednesday rejected a work to rule program and voted to ask the Customs and Excise Officers Association for permission to hold a strike vote to back demands for a larger pay increase.

Living Cost Soars

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States cost of living shot up by one half of 1 percent in June—the biggest increase in 23 months, the labor department announced today.

Salmon Extension

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—A 24-hour extension on sockeye salmon fishing in the Fraser River was announced today by the federal department of fisheries.

Spanish Bomb Out

MADRID (UPI)—Spain will not build an atomic bomb although it has the ability to do so, a spokesman for the Spanish nuclear energy commission said today.

B.C. Drowning

BURNS LAKE (CP)—Peter Unruh, 19, drowned Wednesday night in Decker Lake, three miles west of here. The youth, a non-swimmer, drowned in about 30 feet of water. His body was recovered by RCMP.

STEWARDESSES SAY NO

TCA SAYS SO

What's This! Girls Too Old at 32?

MONTREAL (CP)—Is a girl too old at 32?

Yes, says Air Canada. Definitely not, say 800 stewardesses, members of the Canadian Airlines Flight Attendants' Association.

The issue of a retirement age for stewardesses has been taken to Allan MacEachen, federal labor minister, an association spokesman said Wednesday.

The problem was raised recently because within the next few weeks three girls will reach their 32nd birthdays and will have to retire as stewardesses. They have been offered similar paying jobs with Air Canada and two have accepted. The third hasn't decided what to do.

Miss Imelda Power, spokesman for the CAFAA, says the company policy on stewardess retirement is bad, and added the association believes the age limit should be extended to 50. She said legislation is being sought to effect this change.

The matter of retirement at age 32 has been company policy since 1960, said an Air Canada spokesman, and affects only those hired since then.

However, the CAFAA claims it has never been shown anything stipulating a retirement age of 32, but the Air Canada spokesman said a letter to that effect was sent to the association in 1960.

Asked why Air Canada feels the age limit should be 32, the spokesman said:

"We feel that because of the nature of the job, the age limit should be 32. There is a certain alertness and agility required as a safety consideration, and a certain resiliency is also required to cope with the long working hours that may sometimes be encountered."

Miss Power said this was "ridiculous" since there are stewardesses with 20 years' service who regularly fly the Montreal, London or Paris flights. These girls were with Air Canada before the new age limit came into force in 1960.

She said efforts will continue to be made through the federal government for a change in the policy "which the company itself obviously will never change."

Temperatures may be a fraction cooler but there is every chance of another picnic weekend.

So far this month Victoria has had 318 hours sunshine and .15 inch of rain.

Overnight temperatures should be between 45 and 57.

Victoria weatherman William Mackie promised the same treatment Friday with blue skies and sunshine.

Arthur Mayse

The mailman has always been a Very Important Person at our house, and when he again trudges into our drive with bulging bag, we will see him in the light of a midsummer Santa Claus.

On Wednesday, he passed us by, and perhaps he will today. But when he does come down, we tell each other he will have something nice for us... an unexpected cheque, maybe, or an invitation worth gussying up for, or a letter beginning, "Your piece in last night's paper was absolutely stupendous."

So much for daydreams! Now, here's what will really happen.

The mailman will come, disgorge, and depart, and three minutes later, we'll be almost wishing he'd stayed on strike.

We will find no cheques or invitations in our porch container, although there may be a card urging us to inspect high-priced transportation in a downtown car palace.

A letter will raise our hopes until we open it.

"Sir," it will begin, "after that article you wrote in that newspaper, the fires of hell are reaching for you. You better repent—fast."

The rest will be a three-page theological ramble in which the measurements of the Great Pyramid will figure prominently.

We can also anticipate some bills, a couple of slightly stale magazines, and a sheaf of direct-mail advertising. This will no doubt include a pitch from at least one magazine to which we don't subscribe.

The only break we'll get, in fact, will be a coupon good for a nickel on a giant economy size box of detergent.

I'm not grumbling, mind, just reporting; and I expect the same mailman who torpedoes our wishful thinking will bring relief to many a worried pensioner.

Anyway, in the ups and downs of the busy years, we have become hardened to the lottery over which the man with the letter bag presides six days a week.

Once an envelope with a Los Angeles postmark yielded a particularly clever version of the "Spanish prisoner" racket which has been circling the globe for all of a century.

Again, the message was from a girl who identified herself only as a nurse in a New York hospital. She hated her self even more than she did her patients, and announced that her next act would be to end it all in a dive from a window ledge.

Hoax or true statement of intent? Since the letter wasn't signed or the hospital named, I'll never know.

To a journeyman writer, mail-time is the high point of the day. If he happens to be a free lance, it can bring happiness or despair.

A few lines from a publisher's or literary agent's office may turn a winter's hard work into a pile of used paper, or assure him that his living is made for a year or more.

(Looking back on both, I would say that one possibility is as bad as the other: writers, as a breed, work only when necessity demands. When not actively producing, they are undeniably the laziest people on earth.)

We're on city mail in Gordon Head now. Not to hurt anyone's feelings; but I often wish we weren't.

It used to be that we had, not a man, but a mail lady. She operated by car, and as the grade of stop-go driving did its work on her vehicle's innards, her approach was signalled for an ever-increasing distance.

She veered in with a fine din, stopped a precise arm's reach from our galvanized box on its post, and flipped up the lid.

Since the hinge went un-oiled from year to year, it squealed splendidly at a precise 8:45 a.m.

Our mail arrives in comparative silence now; several hours later than it did in the days of rural delivery... a circumstance that convinces us progress isn't all it's cracked up to be.

MOTHER, WAS IT WORTH IT?

Twenty months learning how to dive... and all for this. Cold reception was in store today for Lieutenant Harvey Waddell, 26, when he returned to the submarine HMCS Grilse after passing final examinations. Crew members took up action stations and "Operation Dunk" was under way. Lt. Waddell was given five minutes to change into old uniform, then up the nearest hatch for the big heave. To the cry of "dive, dive, dive," he hit the cold briny of HMC Dockyard. A shivering, bedraggled, but grinning lieutenant was then officially allowed to join the ship's company. Lt. Waddell, from Nova Scotia, graduated from the RCN's Venture training plan at Esquimalt in 1958. After serving aboard escort destroyers he did six months submarine training followed by 14 months aboard the Grilse.

$300 Fine And Jail Was Close

A young man with a confusing case of driver's licence suspensions was fined $300 today in city magistrate's court.

Kenneth E. Rowe, 20, of HMCS Yukon, pleaded guilty to driving without insurance and driving while under suspension.

The charge arose out of an accident when he was in collision with another vehicle May 27 at Bay and Douglas.

He told police his suspension had expired May 9, according to a notice he had from the motor vehicle branch. But it was only for his unsatisfactory driving record. A second suspension for failing to prove financial responsibility was still in effect.

His defence counsel said Rowe was under the impression he could drive again when the motor vehicle branch informed him his first suspension expired.

Because of the confusion in the case Magistrate William Oster said he would only impose a fine rather than a prison sentence.

ONE OF TWO PARACHUTISTS from B.C. to compete in the Canadian National Parachuting Championships in September in Cobden, Ont., is Brian Bowman, 21, of Victoria. Four-year veteran skydiver, Brian has logged 350 jumps. He placed 11th overall in the 1964 national trials. Six accuracy jumps from 3,300 feet, aiming for six-inch disc in 15-foot circle and three count jumps from 6,600 feet will count for points. Brian believes he has a good chance to make the national team which will compete in July next year in East Germany for world title. Other B.C. entry is Peter Woolgar, Vancouver.

MSGR. BRADLEY... honored

'Greatest Pedestrian' Catholic Priest Loved by All Indians

Famed for his work among the Indians of Vancouver Island, Monsignor John Leo Bradley will be honored at St. Andrew's Cathedral but is seldom home.

"He is always on the road to somewhere," the spokesman said.

Born at Ashbourne, Derbyshire, England, Father Bradley entered the Theological College of the Society of the Sacred Mission at Mildenhall, Suffolk.

He was ordained priest at Fribourg, Switzerland, in 1915 and came to Victoria the following year. Since 1935 he has tramped hundreds of miles around Vancouver Island visiting Indian reserves.

"Father Bradley is our greatest pedestrian," said a spokesman at St. Andrew's Cathedral. "He wears thick boots and he walks everywhere; but when he wants to get somewhere in a hurry, he goes by train, bus or car."

A reception to be given in his honor at St. Joseph's Church Hall, West Burnside, Monday at 8 p.m. will be attended by Chief Phil Paul of the Tsartlip Band, Chief Ed Underwood of the East Saanich Band and members of other reserves.

"Father Bradley is most highly thought of among the Indians of this island," Chief Paul said today.

TWO, THREE OR FOUR, OR

A man who didn't seem to know how much alcohol he had consumed was fined $300 and had his licence suspended today in city court when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

William Patrick O'Neill, 2911 Shakespeare, was stopped by police July 10 on Government St. when his speed between Bay and Pembroke was estimated at 40 mph.

He first told police he had "two or three beers." Later he admitted to "three or four," police said.

When interviewed at the city police station he said he had "four or five beers plus a couple of drops of rum."

Last-Minute Flurry In Centennial Vote

Committee Chooses Tonight

Last-minute interest in a Greater Victoria centennial project today brought a flood of popular opinion from five main sources including ballots and petitions.

A sports stadium complex was a walkaway choice in the Times popular poll ballot conducted in co-operation with Greater Victoria centennial committee on projects.

It was outpaced by petitions favoring Gorge waterway development, as a result of an 11th-hour organized movement by volunteer canvassers who gathered 1,474 signatures. An additional 18 signatures appeared on a private letter favoring the Gorge.

Gorge development was not included on the original Times ballot, but when the committee decided to reconsider it as a possibility, the Gorge was placed on the list for a day before the mail strike interfered.

Write-in ballots were accepted after that.

TIMES BALLOT

The stadium complex drew 603 votes on the Times ballot, 176 on a ballot organized by Victoria Amateur Baseball Association, and 73 on voting organized by volunteers interested in Gorge waterway development.

Centennial projects chairman Bruce Humber said the committee was interested only in the community-wide expression of opinion by the ballot offering multiple choices.

The committee meets tonight to make a recommendation to the centennial committee as a joint project for the capital. Individual local councils will have to approve the suggestion before it can be adopted.

Besides the 603 stadium votes the Times ballot standings were:

Outdoor saltwater pool, 281; Planetarium, 107; Gorge waterway, 77; Glass-domed pavilion, 62; Standings according to the Gorge volunteers' ballot: Gorge waterway, 359; Stadium, 73; Outdoor pool, 68; Planetarium, 12; Glass-domed pavilion, 3.

There was one additional vote for the saltwater pool as a result of the ballot circulated by the baseball association.

Crash Kills Duncan Man

Duncan truck driver Robert Annear died when his truck plunged out of control near Port Alice on Vancouver Island's east coast.

News of his death reached his wife at their Royal Road, Duncan, home today.

First reports said her husband was killed Wednesday but few other details were released.

Mr. Annear was in his early thirties and is the father of five children, aged two to 10. He was working for Rayonier Ltd., who have large forest holdings on northern Vancouver Island.

The hazard has been climbing steadily everywhere for the past few days after a welcome respite of damp and cloudy weather ended a lengthy hot spell that sent fire fighting costs soaring 10 times higher than last year's low expenditures.

"What's making it worse this time is that we're not getting much dew to provide some overnight recovery as we did in the past."

Careless Drivers

In city police court today: Jan Ponce, 1392 Rockland, made left turn July 13 at Cook and Fort at too great a speed, almost losing control, fined $45.

John Patrick Clark, 270 Meadowbrook, collision July 13 at Menzies and Superior after going through a stop sign, fined $45.

PEAK MONTH

"August is the peak month, of course," he said. "But the day in the city returning the same evening," he said. "This year they appear to be staying for a day or two before heading back which means of course that they spend more."

John Cunningham, chairman of the Retail Merchants Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, agreed that business is good.

Mr. Cunningham said that while the number of tourists would naturally be down from the record 1962 year those coming appeared to be staying longer.

"In 1962 we had two boats a day from Seattle but many of the travellers just stayed and in other places report booming business, so do the various tour operators. In fact all people who cater solely to tourists appear extremely happy."

Hotels and motels tell the same story.

"Apart from 1962 which will be a tough year to beat, 1965 could be a record year," says Michael Heppell, director of the Visitor's Bureau.

"It will be well on towards the end of the year before any accurate count can be made, when all the transportation companies tally their totals, but all indications are that we are well on the way to an excellent year."

Victoria Woods Said Explosive

The forest fire situation is heating up rapidly across the province again and has become "potentially explosive" around Victoria, a B.C. Forest Service spokesman warned today.

"We have a total of 242 fires burning right now which is quite a lot and they're engaging some 793 men, the largest number so far this season," he said. More than 40 aircraft of all types and several tractors also are in operation.

There were 87 new fires, most of them in the Terrace area, reported overnight. A large number were caused by lightning strikes.

The closest fire to Victoria was a spot-size blaze caused by a careless smoker near Duncan but it was put out this morning.

EXTREME HAZARD

"The hazard all around Victoria is really extreme—it's no exaggeration to say it's potentially explosive—and we're desperately hoping that parents will warn their children and campers will take full care," the official said.

"If a blaze starts anywhere on the Saanich Peninsula or the Goldstream-Langford area, it could get away on us very easily because of the present conditions, and there are livestock and people's homes at stake."

The hazard has been climbing steadily everywhere for the past few days after a welcome respite of damp and cloudy weather ended a lengthy hot spell that sent fire fighting costs soaring 10 times higher than last year's low expenditures.

"What's making it worse this time is that we're not getting much dew to provide some overnight recovery as we did in the past."

Careless Drivers

In city police court today: Jan Ponce, 1392 Rockland, made left turn July 13 at Cook and Fort at too great a speed, almost losing control, fined $45.

John Patrick Clark, 270 Meadowbrook, collision July 13 at Menzies and Superior after going through a stop sign, fined $45.

PEAK MONTH

"August is the peak month, of course," he said. "But the day in the city returning the same evening," he said. "This year they appear to be staying for a day or two before heading back which means of course that they spend more."

John Cunningham, chairman of the Retail Merchants Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, agreed that business is good.

Mr. Cunningham said that while the number of tourists would naturally be down from the record 1962 year those coming appeared to be staying longer.

"In 1962 we had two boats a day from Seattle but many of the travellers just stayed and in other places report booming business, so do the various tour operators. In fact all people who cater solely to tourists appear extremely happy."

Hotels and motels tell the same story.

"Apart from 1962 which will be a tough year to beat, 1965 could be a record year," says Michael Heppell, director of the Visitor's Bureau.

"It will be well on towards the end of the year before any accurate count can be made, when all the transportation companies tally their totals, but all indications are that we are well on the way to an excellent year."

Cleaning Gas Explosion Burns Woman

Explosion of a can of naphtha gas used for cleaning purposes sent a mother of three to hospital with burns to both arms this morning.

Mrs. Lois Epp, Thetis Lake Trailer Park, was thought to be cleaning clothes in her trailer just after 10 a.m. when the five-gallon can exploded.

She was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital by neighbors at the Trailer Park.

GOOD CONDITION

Hospital officials said she was in good condition at noon today. Two View Royal fire trucks and an ambulance answered a call turned in by Trailer Park owner, Mrs. J. Jamieson.

Firemen extinguished the blaze. Damage to the interior of the trailer was negligible.

Mrs. Epp, a widow, has lived at the Trailer Park since last November. Neighbors are taking care of her children.

SEVEN DAYS IN SUN 300 Nudists Coming To Convention Here

Nudists from the United States and Canada will be meeting on Vancouver Island next month for a week-long "international picnic."

More than 300 nudists from the United States will be joined by local nudists for a convention on the grounds of the So Saanich Club near Shawnigan Lake Aug. 10 to Aug. 15.

A spokesman for the local sunbathing association, Walter Hannam, said a business session will be held toward the end of the week "but it is mainly an international picnic."

FIVE DISTRICTS

The American delegates will represent five regional districts of the association.

Top ranking officers will barely get a chance to get their clothes on as they will be flying directly from conventions in Pennsylvania, Indiana and California.

"The main interest, of course, is health," said Mr. Hannam, "and all types of sports events have been planned."

The visiting sun worshippers will be housed in tents and trailers and there is also a large clubhouse for those without accommodation, said Mr. Hannam.

Mr. Hannam said the members range from newborn babies to men and women in their eighties, but most of the members are young married couples.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you please tell me if the series of Ranger 8 photographs is available to the public? If so, from where? Also, where can one obtain the Ranger 7 series? T. M.

A. Ranger 8 series is not yet available, say officials of Dominion Astrophysical Observatory.

But they do have the Ranger 7 series which you can look at.

The set of photos came from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Jet Propulsion Laboratory, California Institute of Technology, Pasadena, Calif.

Toronto Postmen Will Work Friday

Decisive Vote Ends Walkout

TORONTO (CP)—Striking postal workers in the Toronto area voted 1,857 to 347 today to return to work in a decision union leaders hoped would turn the tide and end the week-long unauthorized walkout.

At a mass meeting the postal clerks and letter carriers decided to report to work for the early-morning shift at 5 a.m. Friday.

But they were told they could, if they wished, go back on the job tonight and begin to move the mountain of mail that has accumulated here since last Thursday.

The vote was announced at 1:43 p.m. after national leaders of the three postal organizations urged the men to reverse their Wednesday decision and return to work.

The 2,200 postal clerks and 1,200 letter carriers have been on strike for a week to back demands for salary increases. The return to work of Toronto postmen is considered the key to ending the strike which has tied up mail deliveries in three provinces.

The strike committee told the cheering workers they should return to work for 14 days, then look at a report by federal mediator Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville, Ont. The committee said if the report was unfavorable another strike could be called.

Postal workers in Montreal are still out on strike. (See story on Page 3.)

Pensioners Get Cheques, Says Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Steps have been taken to set up cheque distribution centres for old age pensioners, Prime Minister Pearson said today.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh announced today emergency distribution centres for old-age pension cheques are being set up in all areas hit by walkouts of postal workers.

The Montreal area alone will have nine distribution centres. Old-age pensioners who are bedridden are being asked to notify the health department's local offices "through a relative or friend" if they need their cheques brought to them. Delivery would be arranged by the department "as fast as this can be done."

Joseph Belland, president of the postal workers' brotherhood, at the same time said in a statement that he had been in touch with welfare officials and had informed them striking postal workers would not interfere with old-age pensioners wishing to go through picket lines to pick up their cheques at post offices closed down by the strike.

Judge J. C. Anderson, appointed by the government last week to study postal employees' wage demands, was working on his report "and we are awaiting it," Mr. Pearson said. Mr. Pearson said the cabinet session was devoted mainly to working on the government's spending program for the next fiscal year so that spending estimates can be prepared.

GIN CHEAPER THAN WATER

NEW YORK (AP)—Tiffany's, Fifth Avenue jewellers, plans to put two fountains in its window displays. But precious water in this city facing a shortage will not be used.

A distiller will donate seven cases of gin to be constantly recirculated in the fountains. This year, New York ordered fines for any person or business which wastes water.

Mail Service 'Normal' As Backlog Vanishes

Mail deliveries were near normal in Victoria today as postal workers caught up on the last backlog of work.

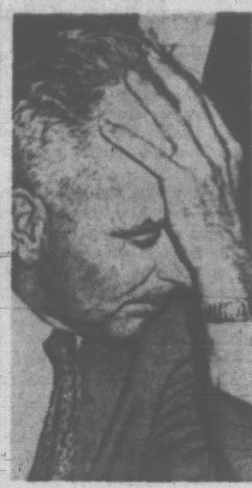

By 5 a.m. this morning all first-class mail had been sorted and cleared.

Only material still awaiting delivery is a pile of third-class mail—mostly handouts and advertising material—on which there is an embargo, and a smattering of second-class mail, mostly monthly publications. The embargo will not be lifted until all other mail is cleared across Canada.

While the machinery hummed in Victoria the wheels were back in motion in Vancouver.

Members agreed Wednesday night to tote the mail for 14 days until federal commissioner Judge J. C. Anderson gives the government his recommendation.

But it was made clear that if the letter carriers don't like his recommendation they will strike again.

BOMBERS BUSY

Airborne Division Arrives

SAIGON (AP)—Paratroopers of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division arrived in South Viet Nam today.

As 3,700 men of the 101st First Brigade began landing at Cam Ranh Bay, 180 miles northeast of Saigon, a U.S. spokesman said B-52 jet bombers of the U.S. Strategic Air Command dumped 500 tons of bombs on suspected Viet Cong positions 35 miles southeast of Saigon.

The B-52 raid—the sixth in South Viet Nam by the Okinawa-based bombers—several thousand paratroopers of the 173rd Airborne Brigade began combing the hilly area. By late today one Viet Cong had been killed, another captured, and there were no U.S. casualties, the spokesman reported.

The paratroopers who landed at Cam Ranh Bay were greeted by the man who commanded their division when it dropped into Normandy to spearhead the Second World War invasion of France, Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor.

It was one of Taylor's last official acts in Viet Nam. He leaves Saigon Friday, to be replaced by Henry Cabot Lodge. Among the arrivals was Taylor's son Thomas, an intelligence officer with the brigade.

The landing came less than 24 hours after President Johnson announced U.S. forces in Viet Nam would be increased from 75,000 to 125,000 men. But a U.S. spokesman said transfer of the 101st Brigade was part of a six-battalion increase in U.S. forces that had been planned some weeks ago.

The paratroopers came from Oakland, Calif., aboard the troop transport Gen. Le Roy L. Eltinge. Their brigade commander, Col. James Timothy of New Orleans, La., said his men would deploy initially around Cam Ranh Bay to provide security for 2,500 U.S. Army engineers who are building a port and an airstrip on one of South Viet Nam's finest natural harbors.

The witnesses said the victim, Andy Whitley, 19, was shot shortly after midnight as he stood with a group of white youths at a filling station about three blocks from the courthouse.

The witnesses said two or three shots were fired from a car containing three Negroes. Some, however, thought there were only two Negroes in the auto.

Police said the car containing the Negroes was wrecked a short distance from the filling station.

Civil rights demonstrators made three marches to the courthouse Wednesday. The first two were completed without incident although white hecklers greeted them as they began the vigil.

About 50 whites gathered near the courthouse but police formed a line to separate them from the Negroes, who carried bedrolls and raincoats.

OFFICIALS CONFIRM IT IS HOT

Today was the hottest July 29 on record. The mercury tipped 78 degrees, beating the previous high of 77.7 set in 1947.

And there was a good chance of temperatures creeping higher this afternoon as offshore winds held off.

Victoria weatherman William Mackie promised the same treatment Friday with blue skies and sunshine.

Temperatures may be a fraction cooler but there is every chance of another picnic weekend.

So far this month Victoria has had 318 hours sunshine and 13 1/2 inches of rain.

Overnight temperatures should be between 49 and 57.

WIRE BRIEFS

Strike Vote Asked

TORONTO (CP)—Customs and excise officers here Wednesday rejected a work to rule program and voted to ask the Customs and Excise Officers Association for permission to hold a strike vote to back demands for a larger pay increase.

Living Cost Soars

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States cost of living shot up by one half of 1 per cent in June—the biggest increase in 23 months, the labor department announced today.

Salmon Extension

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—A 24-hour extension on sockeye salmon fishing in the Fraser River was announced today by the federal department of fisheries.

Spanish Bomb Out

MADRID (UPI)—Spain will not build an atomic bomb although it has the ability to do so, a spokesman for the Spanish nuclear energy commission said today.

B.C. Drowning

BURNS LAKE (CP)—Peter Unruh, 19, drowned Wednesday night in Decker Lake, three miles west of here. The youth, a non-swimmer, drowned in about 30 feet of water. His body was recovered by RCMP.

PHOTOGRAPH NUMBER 11 of Mars was released today by U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Picture was taken from 7,800 miles and covered an area 170 by 150 miles.

MAY HAVE 10,000 CRATERS, PHOTOS SHOW

Mars Like the Moon

WASHINGTON (AP)—Latest pictures of the planet Mars disclosed today that the planet may be pockmarked by up to 10,000 craters, and that it appears to be more like the moon than the earth in its surface features.

This was revealed by space agency scientists in a report to the White House. The report covered findings on 18 previously unpublished photographs taken by Mariner 4 on its epochal voyage to the planet.

The scientist who made the main report said that the findings "will profoundly affect scientific views about the origin of the solar systems," and specifically may shed new light on the history of the earth.

Dr. Robert Leighton of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif., said the latest released pictures of the red planet reveal 70 craters ranging in diameter from three to 75 miles. He said that if the rest of the planet is like the area photographed by Mariner during a period of 25 minutes, there must be "more than 10,000 craters (on Mars) compared to a mere handful on the earth."

Leighton said evidence from the photographs, "neither demonstrates nor precludes the possibility of the existence of life" on the planet.

But the fact that the photos indicate Mars never had any oceans or significant quantities of water makes the prospect of finding life on Mars "less promising," he said.

The scientist took the view that if life does exist on Mars in some primitive form—perhaps bacterial or plant life—Mars "may be the best, perhaps the only, place in the solar system for preserving primitive conditions."

The report was presented at a White House ceremony in which Johnson remarked that he was "a little bit relieved photographs didn't show more signs of life out there."

He said he felt this way because he belonged to the generation which writer-actor-producer Orson Welles "scared out of its wits" with a realistic radio broadcast during the 1930s of an imaginary invasion of earth by Martians.

Leighton said one of the photographs revealing craters is "one of the most remarkable scientific photographs of this century."

Referring to another photograph covering an area in Mars' South Polar regions, he said some of the craters "appear to be rimmed with frost."

NO CLOUDS SHOWN

Leighton said Mariner's photographs of the planet disclose "no earthlike features such as mountain chains, great valleys or continental masses" and there is no evidence of clouds.

He said from study of the photographs so far these inferences about Mars can be drawn:

- In terms of evolutionary history Mars is "more moon-like than earthlike."

- The age of the planet may be somewhere between two and five billion years.

- The surface of the planet is "remarkably preserved"—that is its very thin atmosphere has not changed the surface of the planet since the surface was born.

- The planet never had water sufficient to create oceans or other large bodies, because it had such water at any time in its history, there would have been "severe erosion" of the planet's surface which is not evident from Mariner's photographs.

- The interior of the planet has been "long inactive" as compared to the earth, which Leighton said is "internally dynamic."

As to the four Commons vacancies, they were fairly recent and Parliament wasn't due to meet until September.

"I'll have to begin to give consideration to this once we get some of these other matters disposed of," he said.

The vacancies are in Digby, Annapolis-Kings in Nova Scotia, Victoria and Kenora - Rainy-River in Ontario and Montreal-Dollard. Two were Liberal-held seats and two Progressive Conservative.

Pearson Shelves Election Ideas

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson indicated today that election considerations—either a general election or by-elections to fill Commons vacancies—have been shelved at least until the postal dispute is settled.

He smilingly admitted at a press conference that he's been reading a lot of press reports which say he's considering a fall election, that he's the only one who can decide on one and that he hasn't made up his mind.

TCA SAYS SO

MONTREAL (CP)—Is a girl too old at 32?

Yes, says Air Canada. Definitely not, say 800 stewardesses, members of the Canadian Airlines Flight Attendants' Association.

The issue of a retirement age for stewardesses has been taken to Allan MacEachern, federal labor minister, an association spokesman said Wednesday.

The problem was raised recently because within the next few weeks three girls will reach their 32nd birthdays and will have to retire as stewardesses. They have been offered similar paying jobs with Air Canada and two have accepted. The third hasn't decided what to do.

Miss Imelda Power, spokeswoman for the CAFAA, says the company policy on stewardess retirement is bad, and added the association believes the age limit should be extended to 50. She said legislation is being sought to effect this change. The matter of retirement at age 32 has been company policy since 1960, said an Air Canada spokesman, and affects only those hired since then.

However, the CAFAA claims it has never been shown anything stipulating a retirement age of 32, but the Air Canada spokesman said a letter to that effect was sent to the association in 1960.

Asked why Air Canada feels the age limit should be 32, the spokesman said:

"We feel that because of the nature of the job, the age limit should be 32. There is a certain alertness and agility required as a safety consideration, and a certain resiliency is also required to cope with the long working hours that may sometimes be encountered."

Miss Power said this was "ridiculous" since there are stewardesses with 20 years' service who regularly fly the Montreal, London or Paris flights. These girls were with Air Canada before the new age limit came into force in 1960.

She said efforts will continue to be made through the federal government for a change in the policy "which the company itself obviously will never change."

Tried to interview some 32-year-old girls. But the oldest I could find wuz all 29... and had been for years.

HEAT SETS RECORD IN CITY

More of Same
Seen Friday

Today was the hottest July 29 on record. And it will be continuing hot and dry Friday, said weatherman William Mackie, as the temperature rose toward the 83-degree record for this year.

At 2 p.m. the thermometer at Gonzales Bay weather station showed 82.9 degrees compared to a previous high of 77.7 degrees recorded on this day in 1947.

The hottest day this year was last Saturday when the temperature climbed to 83 degrees.

And as the temperature goes up, the humidity goes down. The relative humidity at press time was 46 per cent.

Mr. Mackie said if the weather holds throughout the weekend, and there is every indication that it will, there may be a slight rise in humidity because of a disturbance off the coast.

REMAINS HOT

Westerly winds and cool air from the Pacific will gradually take the edge off the temperature, but it will still be hot for Victoria for this time of the year.

The humidity will be down generally, except in coastal areas.

So far this month Victoria has had 318 hours of sunshine and 13 inches of rain.

The month long forecast for this area between mid-July and mid-August is for near normal temperatures and moderate precipitation.

Overnight temperatures should be between 49 and 57 degrees with light winds.

Shot Dead;

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — A white teen-ager was killed by a shot fired from a passing car early today as about 250 Negroes started an all-night civil rights vigil at the Sumter County courthouse.

Police arrested two Negroes and charged them with the shooting. They were identified as Eddie Will Lamar and Charlie Lee Hopkins, both of Americus. One hundred state troopers were ordered into the city to preserve peace.

Witnesses said the victim, Andy Whitley, 19, was shot shortly after midnight as he stood with a group of white youths at a filling station about three blocks from the courthouse.

The witnesses said two or three shots were fired from a car containing three Negroes. Some, however, thought there were only two Negroes in the auto.

Hormone
Not Used
In City

Officials at the Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's hospitals said today they had heard of no such hormone treatment locally.

"It is hard to comment without knowing the case history of the women concerned," a Victoria doctor said. "Such experiments are usually made in large clinics."

"A great many factors are involved where there is a deficiency in the pituitary gland and it is hard to say whether this treatment would be effective on any large scale."

Four Swedish Quints Die;
Mother Used Fertility Drug

FALUN, Sweden (Reuters)—A Swedish woman treated with hormones to make her fertile gave birth to quintuplets today but four of them later died.

The babies who died were three boys and a girl. The surviving girl was said to be in critical condition.

The birth came only two days after the same drugs helped produce quintuplets to a New Zealand mother. The New Zealand quintuplets have survived.

The quintuplets' 30-year-old mother was in good condition.

After their birth this morning the quintuplets were put into an oxygen tent. Their weights were between two and four pounds.

The birth came two days after the birth of quintuplets in Auckland, N.Z., and press reports in both countries said both women believed to be the first time quintuplets had been born alive in Sweden.

Four girls and a boy were born Tuesday to Mrs. Samuel Lawson of Auckland, and all are reported in good condition.

A statement issued by the Falun hospital said that of the newest quints had lived through the night, "there was an excellent chance that they would have all survived."

The name of the mother was not announced.

However, the CAFAA claims it has never been shown anything stipulating a retirement age of 32, but the Air Canada spokesman said a letter to that effect was sent to the association in 1960.

Asked why Air Canada feels the age limit should be 32, the spokesman said:

"We feel that because of the nature of the job, the age limit should be 32. There is a certain alertness and agility required as a safety consideration, and a certain resiliency is also required to cope with the long working hours that may sometimes be encountered."

Miss Power said this was "ridiculous" since there are stewardesses with 20 years' service who regularly fly the Montreal, London or Paris flights. These girls were with Air Canada before the new age limit came into force in 1960.

She said efforts will continue to be made through the federal government for a change in the policy "which the company itself obviously will never change."

Tried to interview some 32-year-old girls. But the oldest I could find wuz all 29... and hed been fer years.

plants at Fort McMurray. The trio of condensers followed by a sulphur recovery boiler shipped to the mine some time ago."

Why sulphur boilers and condensers for an oil recovery plant? Because thums rich tar sands, discovered in the 1700's by a fellow named Peter Pond, is rich in the stuff, and oil recovery experts, like log buchers, waste nothing but are squeal.

(Peter Pond, by the way, recorded the remarkable qualities of tar sands in his official records after finding local Indians using the thick paste to repair canoes. Peter died in the United States after depart-needs, but just in case Ottawa does turn a cold shoulder on the west management doesn't intend to be left with a well-equipped but empty shipyard.

Back to the sulphur condensers for a minute.

BIG MONSTER

The 48-ton monster leaves Victoria Friday via flat-car, jog over the E and N tracks as far as Nanaimo where it boards the Princess of Vancouver, then via CPR to its ultimate destination in the country where ears freeze in the winter and the summer mosquitoes look, and sound like DC-8's.

Two years ago Fort McMurray, roughly 20 miles from Waterways, was a cluster of shacks with native Indians forming the bulk of the population. That was before man discovered a way of separating the oil from the sand it oozes from

proven, but he was suspected of murdering his partner one winter night.)

Next on the VMD production list for the oil sands—the name was changed only recently from tar sands to oil sands though natives stick stubbornly to the former—is a quench steam generator which, “to the uninformed is, quote,” a special heat exchanger.”

TOPS COMPETITION

Thus by dint of careful planning, diversification of operation and the employment of top men in the trade, does VMD match and beat top competition in the engineering production field.

streets are being laid out, shopping centres are sprouting, town is alive with technicians—the native population is going to work—and at semi-skilled jobs too—and a bouncy little fellow named Art Playford has launched his way into the newspaper business by publishing a weekly news-sheet. (His other claim also thrives on the business: being the Pembina Weekly News published at Drayton Valley in the heart of the rich Pembina Valley a little over 100 miles east of Jasper.)

The oil sands—the royalty from them anyway—belongs to the people of Alberta, but it is nice to know that enterprising VMD is getting Victoria a
